FIFTY THOUSAND PEOPLE SEE THE CHIEF EXECUTIVE

Crowd Is Largest of Trip to Date; President Is Greatly Impressed By Immense Size of Throng; Park Is Filled

As he rode along between the solid masses of humanity which lined the streets, President Taft was again and again impressed with the immense size of the throng which had turned out to greet him yesterday. Captain Archibald Butts, the president's aide stated that the throng assembled to greet Taft in this city was the largest which the president has met thus far on his trip, with no exceptions.

Conservative estimates place the number who saw President Taft at nearly 55,000. There was scarcely a resident of this city who did not get at least a glimpse of the nation's chief executive and the outside people who came to this city were estimated at a little over 20,000.

MANY OUTSIDERS.

Thousands in the southern part of the valley took advantage of the cheap fare to this city and Porterville, Visalia, Tulare, Exeter, Lindsay and other southern towns were practically deserted yesterday. On one train from Hanford and Goshen it was necessary for the Southern Pacific to put on several freight cars to accommodate the enormous crowd which came to this city from these towns yesterday morning.

President Taft took occasion to mention in several instances that the crowd which greeted him yesterday was the largest crowd which had been massed together at one time to meet him on his present trip.

And it was a good natured crowd. The Taft smile seemed to have taken possession of the people and in no instance was any trouble reported. It was also a well behaved crowd. As the squad of police on foot wended its way through the streets immediately in front of the procession, it was necessary to make people get back under the ropes in only one or two instances.

Early in the day the police were on hand and as the throngs began to gather to various vantage points from which they were destined to get a view of the president, the officers checked any big rushes and equalized the moving throng. This work, done early in the day, prevented any great rush at the last moment and when the time came for the procession to start from the depot, everyone was behind the ropes and the streets were absolutely clear.

When the president alighted from the train, the first sight that met his eyes was an immense throng around the depot platform. Just before the president's train pulled into the station, it looked as though this crowd would become unmanageable, but after fifteen minutes' strenuous work with ropes, the crowd was forced back until a big clear space was left through which the president and his party passed without trouble to the different automobiles which had been assigned to them.

After leaving the depot the density of the crowd was particularly noticeable on all the street crossings. From the depot to the alley between H and I on Tulare, thousands were packed up against the ropes, but from this point to the corner of I and Tulare the ranks thinned. Along J street the same conditions prevailed. Immense throngs were gathered at all the street crossings, but in the middle of the block the line wavered.

Owners of automobiles took advantage of the street crossings and on each crossing exit was barred by a row of machines.

The largest single mass of people was at the court house park. Between a space of school children twelve or fifteen deep, stretching from the telegraph poles on Fresno street to the hitching racks bordering the court house park, the crowd was equally as dense.

THOUSANDS IN PARK.

It was estimated that prior to the start of the processing from the depot there were in the neighborhood of 10,000 people in the park. When the president arrived at the park, however, the number was increased to almost 15,000, and as far back from the platform as could be seen, there was nothing but a mass of human heads.

As the president passed various spots along the route, the crowd broke and headed for the park, there to get another glimpse of the nation's executive.

When the president passed the corner of J and Fresno streets, on his journey around the court house park, the crowd managed to break the lines and for a few minutes a solid mass of humanity surged up the narrow passageway which was meant for the president and his party alone and through which he was to pass to the handstand where the exercises were to be held. Before the procession had circled the park, however, the police had the crowd once more under control and the passageway clear. This was the only instance where the crowd became unmanageable for any space of time.

When the president began his trip over the city by automobile, after the exercises at the park, hundreds still lingered to get one last look at him and until the line of automobiles reached the subway en route to Kearney Park, the crowd was equally as dense as it was when the procession first passed over the street.

Stationed at various places along Kearney avenue were little groups of people who, being unable to come to town, had come here to see their president. As Taft passed these small groups he bowed and waved his hand and each group sent back a resounding cheer.

At the entrance to Kearney Park a large number of automobiles had assembled to greet the president as he passed in and out of the park, and here again Taft was forced to doff his hat in answer to the greetings which were extended him.

At the residence of the late M. Theo Kearney, a small group of about 100 was assembled and when the president arrived here, he was once more accorded a hearty greeting.

TAFT CLOSELY WATCHED.

While the president smiled on the immense host which had turned out to meet him, thanking them for their hearty welcome, seated near at hand were two secret service men with eyes alert for the man who sought to do harm to the executive. The slightest move, if made with much suddenness, was noticed by them, and they were ever ready to protect Taft in time of danger.

During the time the president was in the automobile, one secret service man was seated with him, while one was in a car directly behind. When the automobile was in any way slowed down, these men, with lightning like quickness, were on each side of the car, watching with eagle eyes for any attempt on Taft's life.

During the exercises at the park these secret service men were seated on the platform and every move of the immense throng in front of them was closely noted. In fact, throughout the president's stay in this city he was closely watched by these secret service men, who were always at his elbow.

At Kearney Park, an aged laborer strode up to the president's automobile just as Taft was leaving the Kearney residence and, stopping directly in front of the president, saluted the chief magistrate. A secret service man was immediately standing between Taft and the stranger in case the man should make any threatening move. In the short space of about ten seconds, this stranger had been looked over from head to foot by two or three secret service men.

"Are you an old soldier?" asked the president as the old man saluted.

"I am 50 years old and have always voted the Republican ticket," said the old man as he stepped up and shook hands with Taft.

The old man then saluted again and was about to talk to the president further when he was quietly put to one side by the secret service men.

GOOD ORDER PREVAILS.

During the celebration attending the visit of President Taft to this city there was not a single arrest made because of unmanageable persons and everyone quickly and willingly obeyed the orders of the officers on guard.

Chief of Police Shaw stated last night that he was more than pleased with the conduct of the crowd during the visit of the president. It was well behaved and in no instance was there any necessity for special police work other than to keep the crowd within the lines. Two or three were arrested for drunkenness, but other than this there were no arrests.

One thing was particularly noticeable, however, and that was the number of children lost. After Taft had left the city over twenty-five calls were received at the police station by anxious parents wondering where their children might be and a number of lost children were picked up by the police while wandering about the city. The majority of the children were found or returned to their parents without much trouble, however.

PRESIDENT PREACHES IN PARK THE GOSPEL OF SELF CONTROL

PRESIDENT WM. H. TAFT AND SOME OF HIS EPIGRAMS

I like to dwell on the importance of little things, for life is not made up of one grand round or series of grandstand plays.

If you have to say "No," say it in such a way as to indicate to the person to whom you say it that you would like to say "Yes" if you could. And when you do say "Yes," and are able to, communicate it to the other person that you are glad you know—that it makes him feel happy.

Popular government is the most difficult thing to establish. We have had to hammer at it in a thousand years of Anglo-Saxon suffering and controversy and contest and now it rests where? It rests in the common sense and the self-restraint of the American people.

The people rule, there is no doubt about that; but they rule according to law, and under the constitution, and they voluntarily and willingly placed that constitution and that form and method of expression upon themselves, in order that they might act with deliberation and with the checks that were sure to secure moderate, clear-headed, well-thought-out policies.

Delivers in Fresno Third Sermon He Has Preached On His Trip—Popular Government Demands Good Winners As Well As Good Losers, Declares Nation's Chief Executive

When the presidential party mounted the hand-stand in the park they looked out on a congested mass of cheering people. Seats were only for the G. A. R., the ex-Confederate veterans and the Spanish War veterans; the local citizens that accompanied the party in the automobile trip, and those who had gone to the park early. The great throng that flooded into the grounds after the parade found only standing room. The stout branches of the trees formed vantage points for the young and agile.

The stand was tastefully decorated with the national emblems, potted palms, bunches of grapes and flowers.

Charles Coke Wilcox, president of the Ministerial Union, opened the service by calling for the singing of the Coronation hymn, "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name," Rev. Arthur Polk Brown following with Scripture reading, a portion of the XIII chapter of Romans.

Dr. Thomas Boyd in leading in prayer asked the vast assemmnage to join in "The Lord's Prayer." The choir led in singing "Onward Christian Soldiers," and then Rev. Woods presented Mayor Rowell, who in turn introduced the president in the following words:

"It is a privilege to see and to hear the president of the United States. Whatever may be or may have been our political affiliations we are, first of all, all Americans, and as such we honor and pay homage to the position and to the man.

"Under the appropriate auspices of the united clergy of this city, with reverential regard for the occasion and this Sabbath day, in behalf of the city of Fresno and the assembled people of the San Joaquin valley, I offer you greetings and exercise the rare privilege of introducing the president of the United States, William Howard Taft."

The president was enthusiastically received and it was some minutes before quiet was restored. The president in accordance with the religious character of the exercises and the nature of the day preached a sermon—the third he has preached on this trip. He preached from the text quoted from memory, "He who conquereth himself is greater than he who taketh a city." This he applied to the ordinary affairs of life as well as to governmental matters. The president spoke for twenty-five minutes, as follows:

Mr. Mayor, and Clergymen of Fresno, Ladies and Gentlemen, Citizens of Fresno: It has not been my part, until I began this trip, in religious exercises to do other than form one in the audience, but I have found it impossible, under the friendly urgency of ministers of the gospel who occasionally desire a lay substitute, to keep from taking their place, and attempting to preach a sermon.

I want to say first, with respect to this audience, that the presence of the veterans of the Civil War is always a great inspiration to higher thought, and higher moral standards, and to everything that goes to make our country worth living for. I have discussed the question with some of my companions as to what subject I might select for this Sunday afternoon, as one taking part in religious exercises, and with the true California spirit it was suggested that I ought to point out to Californians how much they have to thank God for. (Applause.) And perhaps, if I took that subject I could get more earnest sympathy and hearing than on some other text more useful. However, I don't know that I can quote it exactly, but to these gentlemen before me who have taken part in the battles of the war, it will come by reason of its comparison, with great significance, that he who conquers himself is greater than he who taketh a city.

Now, the home application to the individual of that text I need hardly point out. The struggles of the man who is burdened, by heredity or otherwise, with the taste for strong drink, who overcomes it, though it chases him through night and day, those of us who are not so afflicted may yet appreciate and honor in the man who, having yielded many times has finally struggled and, with the aid of God, won the victory. But it is not drink alone. I sometimes think, and perhaps your distinguished mayor, even more distinguished as a physician, will agree with me that the appetite for food (Laughter) is one that may well enable a man, if he can control it, to look upon himself as better than the man who taketh a city. (Laughter.) And then, there are so many other instances, in little things. I like to dwell on the importance of little things in life, for life is not made up of one grand round or series of grandstand plays. It is made up of the little things that go either to make others happy or to make them unhappy. It is the conduct of the husband as he comes home after a tired day, in restraining himself, when he is met by his curious, eager wife, who wants to know how he has been faring during the day, and what has happened, and perhaps something has happened that does not please him, and he does not like to refer to it, and he cuts her off with a short answer: Oh, I know it—and so do you. You have done it, and so have I. Now, it is the overcoming of that disposition, the keeping constantly in your mind and heart for happiness, and not your comfort—on your disposition, that is what makes you greater than taking a city. (Applause.) And so it is with reference to every one with whom you come in contact. If you have to say "No," say it in such a way as to indicate to the person to whom you say it that you would like to say yes if you could. And when you do say yes, and are able to, communicate to the other person that you are glad because you know that it makes him feel happy.

POPULAR GOVERNMENT.

Now, those are the homely illustrations of what I read into that text. But I am supposed, I suppose, to look at things from a political and governmental standpoint; and the text appeals to me more strongly in that regard, possibly, than in any other, because of some very acute experiences that I have had in political matters. Popular government we all approve of, though sometimes I don't think we know exactly why we do approve of it. I think we mistake frequently the means for the means. We talk about liberty as something to be accomplished as an end. We view government, popular government, as something to be accomplished as an end. Well, neither is true. Liberty is a means in the pursuit of happiness. Popular government we believe in because we believe in the long run that it is the best government, that it is the government which makes most people happy, and the reason is this, that in the long run the interests of any particular class, and by that I mean those people who are affected by the same set of circumstances, can by representation in the government, be better trusted to look after their own interests, than any other class can be trusted to look after their own interests, no matter how altruistic that class; so that if every class is represented, assuming that that class has intelligence enough to know its own interests, we can count on that being a better government than a government by one, or a few, or only a particular class.

That is a government, a popular government. But you can't run a popular government, merely by calling it so. You have got to have some means of determining what shall direct the affairs of government, what shall decide. That is, the majority. I don't know any other method in a popular government. We do have checks, we do have indirect means of giving expression to the vote of the majority, but when you get down to the basis, it is the control of the majority. Now, you can't have a decent popular government unless that majority can conquer itself, that is, unless that majority exercises the self-restraint that men with great power ought to exercise. If it is to be exercised justly, you can't have popular government.

And so it is. Well, take instances. I am not going into the various parts of the world, but I could call your attention, if it were not that I am in a responsible position now with respect to foreign countries and I have got to speak with care, I could call your attention to a great many instances where those who are in favor of popular government, and who—if I may use the expression—pull the tail feather out of the eagle in deifying liberty and apostrophizing everything that is dear, and yet, just as soon as they become the majority they think that gives them the right to control the minority, absolutely; and if the minority show any disposition to question it, they send them to jail. Well, what is the effect of that? (Laughter.) Is one that may well enable a man, if he can control it, to look upon himself as better than the minority says: We will take to the woods, and they do take to the woods. So we have that system that alternates between election and revolution, and a revolution and an election, and you call that popular government.

DUTY OF MAJORITY.

Now, why is it that it works that way? It is because the majority and the minority do not govern themselves and do not exercise that self-restraint without which popular government is absolutely impossible, and that is the application of the text that comes home to me in thinking and dealing with these countries that are struggling for popular government, every time I meet them. A minority that is beaten in the election cannot stand the defeat. It has got to go to the woods. They are not good losers and the majority are not good winners. Popular government is the most difficult thing to establish. We have had to hammer at it in a thousand years of Anglo-Saxon suffering, and controversy, and contest, and now it rests where? It rests in the common sense and the self-restraint of the American people. (Applause.) It rests in the knowledge of the majority that it has got to keep within the checks of the law and the constitution. The government is to be preserved. And it rests, must rest, in the view of the minority that it is much more important that the government should be sustained than that the minority should have, for the time being, control or a voice in the government. It rests in the knowledge of the majority that the rights of the minority and of the individuals of that minority, are exactly as sacred as the rights and the will of the individuals of the majority.

RESTRAINTS OF LAW.

Our people expressed government over themselves when they adopted the constitution of the United States. We don't vote directly, under that constitution. We have a vote which controls the lower house in the selection of the members. We delegate to those members the power to make laws. We don't make them direct. We elect legislatures that elect senators. Those senators are elected every six years, and members of the house are elected every two years. Then we elect a president every four years. Each one of those little joints between popular expression and will and the embodying of that will in the resulted course of the government is something which the people voluntarily introduced into our government—for what purpose? Why, to enable them to govern themselves, so that the first wave of popular will should not find immediate expression in immediate legislation, but that the people should take time and discuss the matter and should have several ways before they accomplish their entire purpose with respect to the government. The people rule, there is no doubt about that, but they rule according to law, and under the constitution, and they voluntarily and willingly placed that constitution and that form and method of expression upon themselves, in order that they might act with deliberation, and with the checks that were sure to secure moderate, clear-headed, well-thought-out policies. And therefore, when the American people voted that constitution, and now that they are maintaining it and supporting it, as I hope that they always will, they are governing themselves, and more are to be credited than he that taketh a city. (Applause.)

RELIGIOUS TOLERANCE.

And, finally, even we, or even rather, those of the cloth, whose place I humbly take at this hour, have learned to govern themselves. There was a time in religious matters when the man who was in governmental control and had his own theological theory to work out, worked it out by bringing everybody into believing it or else cutting off the head or burning the body of the gentleman who didn't agree with him. Well you can reason out, pretty logically, sometimes, that that was the course to be properly taken, but we tried it on both sides; one church and then the other, as it got a chance, took that method of introducing religion into the mind, and soul and body of the person that offered up, but after a time there crept into the beliefs and the practice of all religions the idea that the way to have religion conquer was to be gentle with views that were contrary to the creed of that particular religion—and rely on the argument and the force and the accomplishments of that religion to win converts, rather than by the stake and by the ax. They overcame that feeling in themselves, that they must make their religion conquer by any means and they took the method that introduced a broad tolerance of all religious creeds and let each creed and each religion speak for itself, gently with a message of good will to all humanity. And that is what we have today, and that is what I am glad to think is illustrated by this meeting today. It means the brotherhood of man as between all Christian religions, the brotherhood of man and the fatherhood of God. It means tolerance for every belief and every creed that a man honestly and conscientiously entertains, and it means that with that tolerance, all the people can be much more surely brought within the circle of those who believe and act upon that belief than by any other method. And so I say that "He who controls himself is greater than he that taketh a city." (Applause.)

At the conclusion of President Taft's address, Rev. Woods said:

"I am sure that the churches of this city and the surrounding community—the ministers of this county feel that they owe a debt of lasting gratitude to the president of the United States for this great American sermon today, and now we want everybody to join with us in singing this great American hymn, America. We want the men in the trees and the men on the ground, everybody, to sing, everybody, after which Rev. Duncan Wallace will dismiss us with the benediction."

Rev. Duncan Wallace in pronouncing the benediction said: "God bless our president, and now—as we separate, we pray Thee that Thou wouldst watch between us while we are absent one from another. Amen."

President Taft held a brief levee on the platform, whereupon the president and party were escorted to their auos for the Kearney Park trip.

TAFT SMILES ON FRESNO; THOUSANDS CHEER HIM

Receives Ovation All Along Route—Is Greatly Pleased With Kearney Park—Will Come Back When Raisins Are Higher

The automobile ride of President Taft and his party through the streets of Fresno consisted of one long double line of waving handkerchiefs and cheers from the time that the distinguished visitor left his car until he stepped from his auto to deliver his speech at Court House Park. The president, wearing a smile that promises to become as famous as that of the strenuous Roosevelt, occupied a seat in the head machine with Mayor Rowell on his left. He doffed his hat as he left his car in response to the continued cheering and the head-piece was not again replaced until he walked toward the stand in the park. As a consequence, the people during his ride were not able to see for themselves just what kind of hat he prefers. It was noticeable, however, that the president's hair is becoming rather scanty and that a bare spot is beginning to show on the top of his head. It was the opinion of many of the women along the line of march that this bare spot, if anything, gives the president a more distinguished appearance.

Mayor Rowell's suggestion that there should be no boisterous demonstration, owing to the fact that it was Sunday, was studiously carried out. Not one thing was done while the president was riding by that could be considered as objectionable. The cheering was only of the sort that should be expected and the women waved their handkerchiefs while the men used their hands in waving or else doffed their hats for the purpose.

ARRANGEMENTS PERFECT.

The committee of arrangements did its work well, and as a consequence there was not the least confusion. Each person entitled to ride in the automobiles was provided with an invitation in the shape of a card bearing his name and the number of the auto in which he was to have a seat. When the presidential train pulled in these cards were distributed among the visitors and all were then promptly seated in their places and the ride through the streets commenced. The president held his hat in his hand and bowed to right and left in response to the cheering as he passed by. On Fresno street as he passed the children that had been grouped along the street adjacent to Court House Park, the president's smile expanded into what was almost a grin as he saw the little tots. The children were supposed to have sung a patriotic song as the visitor passed them. A few of them actually made the attempt, but when the president waved his hat at them the song died away and a "Hurrah for the President!" replaced it. The tots shouted in glee and clapped their hands as the president continued to shower them with smiles and waves of his hat.

PLENTY OF ROOM.

It was a wise move on the part of the committee of arrangements when it decided that the president and party during their ride should pass entirely around Court House Park. A large portion of the crowd, knowing that the president would pass that way, assembled in the park and thus relieved the congestion that would have been sure to result in the business streets under any other plan. As a result of this move there was not one person in Fresno yesterday of those that congregated to see the visitor that did not obtain a good look at him. Everybody had a "front seat." The windows of the buildings were well filled by women as well as men who waved along with those in the streets and helped give the president the idea that he was indeed welcome to the metropolis of the San Joaquin valley.

POLICE PROTECTION.

Ample police protection was given to President Taft while he was in Fresno. When the party came into view at the end of each street the officers on special duty at once became busy and forced everyone, irrespective of who they might be, to get behind the lines. The line of autos was preceded by Police Sergeant Coyle and Officers Davis, Castner and Craig, all on foot. Immediately following came Chief of Police Shaw mounted on a black horse and leading Officers Mahen, Bradley, McKee, Helms, Broad, McLaren and Knight, also mounted. Sheriff Chittenden and his deputies were also all on duty and did good work in keeping the crowd back. In the president's auto Secret Service Man Sloane occupied a prominent standing position, holding himself in readiness for all emergencies, while Captain Archibald W. Butts of the United States army, in full uniform, was also in the machine.

All of the members of the presidential party were on hand with the exception of Congressman McKinlay, who left the party at Merced and returned north. Congressman Smith of Bakersfield, however, was on hand to take his place, as was also H. A. Jastro, of the State Agricultural Society. Governor Gillett occupied a seat in the third machine, and the state executive came in for his share of the applause, not as much, however, as he would have received had his place been further back from the president's machine, the latter, of course, was the main object of interest. Eleven machines were required to convey the party of visitors.

TRIP TO COUNTRY.

After the president's address in the park, the entire party was taken by the committee of arrangements on a trip into the country. Kearney Park was first visited, and the president was enthusiastic over the beauties of the drive. It was the most beautiful, he asserted that he had taken during his entire trip. Before returning to town, the party was taken to the east of the city to give them a fleeting glimpse of the surrounding country.

During his ride the president asked innumerable questions about Fresno. He desired to know all about its resources and wondered at its cosmopolitan population. He displayed a wonderful knowledge of local conditions and especially about the labor problems and politics. Mayor Rowell explained to him that a far noisier demonstration would have been made in his honor had it not been generally understood that he was opposed to such on Sunday. The president expressed himself as pleased at the thoughtfulness of Fresno people and stated that some deference should always be had for the Christian churches.

While on the ride into the country the letter of greeting entrusted to the mayor by the local Japanese Reform Association for delivery was handed to him. He read the missive and placed it in his pocket as he expressed his appreciation.

The president was also informed of the request made by the Chinese that they be allowed to discharge fireworks as a welcome, and while he stated that he appreciated the motive he was nevertheless glad that this feature of the program was not carried out.

After a trip through the grounds at the Kearney estate, a short stop was made at the house, where Manager Frisselle welcomed the president and party. President Taft took a lively interest in the magnificent estate and asked a number of questions about the late M. Theo. Kearney. Glancing about the hunting and like pictures that adorn the walls, the president remarked that evidently the late proprietor had a lively interest in the old country.

During the brief levee held in the house, Levi Garrett of Kingsburg shook hands with the president, explaining that he had shaken hands with every president since Pierce and had voted for every one, with a single exception, since Buchanan. "Why, you have quite a record," was Taft's laughing comment.

President Taft and Captain Butts left their autographs on the visitors' roster, and in leaving the president expressed his best wishes to Manager Frisselle for the success of the estate under the university regime, adding that he didn't see that the owner left much more to be done.

The run in was made in quick time and then a spin east was taken, returning by Ventura avenue, the president and party reaching their cars exactly on time, 6 p. m.

TAFT ON BIG POSTER.

One particularly bright feature of the decorations along the route of the presidential party was a large painting of the president that hung in front of the Fulton Hotel. The painting was so large that it extended across the entire width of the sidewalk.

An interesting thing is that the painting was executed in San Francisco upon the order of Fulton G. Berry, who is at present ill in a sanitarium in Pasadena, but who considered that he should do something toward welcoming the chief executive of the nation to Fresno.

SALUTES FLAG.

As the president's carriage rounded the corner of J and Tulare streets, a youth on the second floor of the Republican building, a block away, grabbed a large flag from the railing, and, standing on the window ledge, waved it wildly in the air. The president stood on his feet and returned the greeting.

An aged man sitting in a chair near the boy asked for the flag and when Taft appeared at the corner of K and Tulare, after making a detour of the Court House Park, the old gentleman feebly waved the Stars and Stripes, although compelled to brace himself on the railing in order to put enough energy into the flag waving that Taft might see it. The president waved recognition and the man of nearly four score years sank into his chair from exhaustion. He was happy when a small boy standing near by informed him that Taft had noticed his efforts.

CAMERA FIENDS.

The camera fiends were out in full force. As the presidential party neared different points along the line a half dozen would dart across the street in front of the mounted police to secure a more convenient spot from which to snap their instruments. From nearly every second story window in the business section a camera clicked as the president passed.

GETS "BIG STICK."

When President Taft returned to his car after his trip into the country he found in his car an immense gourd shaped identically the same as the cartoonists delight in picturing Roosevelt's big stick. The gourd was several feet in length and at first sight seemed a dangerous weapon in the hands of any person large enough to wield it.

President Taft's smile expanded to its entire width when he lifted the gourd and found that it weighed about two ounces. The [illegible] following which [illegible]

WOMAN'S SLAYER DECLARED INSANE

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 10.—That the murder of Miss Caroline Brasch, stenographer for Gray Brothers, by James Cunningham in the office of that firm on June 30 last was the deed of an insane man, was the report made to Judge Dunne today by Insanity Commissioners McGettigan and Lustig. These physicians had Cunningham under observation for two hours daily for a fortnight and are convinced that he is an incurable paranoiac and should be confined in an asylum. He has hallucinations, they say, that he is the son of God, that a spirit is oppressing him, and that all women are in love with him.

Judge Dunne continued the case until Monday, when a jury will be impaneled to hear the testimony of the physicians and render a verdict before Cunningham is legally pronounced insane.

PRECOOLING PLANT IS IN OPERATION

ROSEVILLE, Cal., Oct. 10.—The new intermittent precooling plant just completed here by the Southern Pacific company at a cost of $1,000,000 began operation today. Its purpose is the cooling of fruit previous to transportation to the Eastern states which, it is said, insures its delivery in a perfectly fresh condition.

The most notable feature of the plant, aside from the immense storehouse, is a pipe line, or galvanized iron shaft, large enough in diameter to allow five men to walk abreast through it. Through this great pipe, cold air is forced into the storehouse as a fruit cars, and the hot air is driven out.

MAKES NO PROMISES ABOUT PRESIDENCY

Bryan "Hopes" That Nothing Will Arise To Make Him Candidate for Office Again

SPOKANE, Oct. 10.—"I do not expect to be a candidate for any office again," declared William Jennings Bryan today.

As to my being a possible candidate for president of the United States in 1912, I will say that while not promising anyone that I will not be a candidate under any circumstances, still I do not expect to be. I hope nothing will arise to make it necessary for me to be a candidate for any office again."

"Do you believe party lines are being eliminated?"

"I think that for the last fifteen years there has been increasing independence in the voter. I do not believe, however, that in our lifetime we will see but one party. I see no sign of a drift in that direction."

HE DREW INTEREST ON PUBLIC MONEY

SPOKANE, Oct. 10.—C. E. Atkinson, clerk of Spokane county, was arrested today on a warrant accusing him of using money under his official control for his private benefit. The arrest followed an indictment by the grand jury.

The specific charge is that Atkinson, as county clerk and ex-officio clerk of the Superior Court, placed moneys left in his custody by litigants in the Traders' National bank to his own credit and drew a monthly interest on the total amount deposited, $138,317.60.

PRESIDENT ENJOYS TRIP TO YOSEMITE

Chief Executive Declares Journey Real Rest

Governor Gillett, Senator Flint and Congressman Needham Give Views

In speaking of the visit of President Taft to the Yosemite valley, Congressman J. C. Needham stated last night the press reports of the strenuousness of the trip were very much exaggerated.

"The journey was made easily and with very few discomforts," said the congressman, who was one of the members of the president's party at the time.

"President Taft is not as garrulous as some people and did not express great enthusiasm, but he enjoyed every moment of the time and stated afterward that it was a real rest and that he had been satisfied.

"He was especially pleased with the view from Washburn Point on the road to Glacier Point, in the High Sierras. As he stood on this point looking out into the valley, he remarked that he did not believe there was any grander mountain scenery in the world.

"The president was also greatly taken with Wawona and stated that it was one of the most restful places he had ever visited.

"During the one day he spent in the valley, the president enjoyed every minute. The falls are not very high at this time of the year and they couldn't produce as much as they do in the spring. The president enjoyed the outdoor lunch at Chinquapin Forest during the first day of the trip.

"There was nothing to mar the trip in any particular and the stage company kept its schedule. There was not a very large number of people in the valley, although this really is the best time to see it. The climate was perfect."

While in the Yosemite valley, Congressman Needham stated that Taft expressed no opinion either way regarding the Hetch Hetchy. He added that John Muir was chosen to meet Secretary Ballinger with Marsen Manson, city engineer of San Francisco, regarding the Hetch Hetchy in order that both sides might be represented in the case.

BY GOVERNOR JAMES N. GILLETT

"We had a most enjoyable trip in the Yosemite valley. Entering the valley we spent one night on Wawona and one on Glacier Point. The president enjoyed every moment of the time. The weather was splendid and all were impressed by the grandeur of the scene.

"The president stood the trip better than any other member of the party. He was the toughest one in the crowd and was highly pleased with everything he saw."

BY SENATOR FRANK P. FLINT

"The president stated that he had the finest time of his entire trip while he was in the Yosemite valley. He was greatly impressed with what he saw and stated that he was coming back to see the valley again.

"At Glacier Point, the president stated that he had had the best meal since he was a boy. When it came to traveling over the mountain trails he surpassed all of us. There were no special incidents attending the trip."

FALLS FROM PORCH; IMPALED ON STAKE

Ten-Year-Old Child Suffers An Awful Death As Result of Playmates' Pranks

While playing with some other children at her home, 612 K street, last Thursday afternoon, Edna Gunter, the 10 year old daughter of A. F. Gunter, a Santa Fe switchman, was pushed off the porch and impaled on a stake which had been driven into the ground. The stake penetrated the child's bowels and resulted in her death yesterday morning about 2 o'clock. When the child fell the stake passed entirely through her body.

Funeral services will be held from the undertaking parlors of Stephens & Bean this afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. Duncan Wallace officiating. Interment will be in Mountain View cemetery.

COMMITTEE OF FIVE WILL BE CHOSEN

The board of thirteen directors chosen to serve on the million-dollar corporation being organized to carry out the Tiedman plan, will meet today for the purpose of selecting a committee of five men who will attempt to devise some means of disposing of this year's raisin crop to advantage.

It is also probable that the remaining two members of the board will be chosen. In yesterday's report of the meeting held on Saturday, the name of I. Tiedman, the organizer of the proposed company, was inadvertently omitted as a member of the board of directors.

HILL MAY BUILD OUT FROM DENVER

Branch Line Through the San Joaquin Valley Part of Possible Railroad Move

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 10.—That J. J. Hill is considering the extension of the Burlington railroad from Denver to the Pacific Coast is stated by T. B. Walker, a Minneapolis millionaire, who has close relations with the railway magnate. He is quoted as follow:

"In a talk which I had recently, Hill told me that he did not consider that a line from San Francisco would be of great advantage, but that the extension of the Burlington to this city probably from the end of the Cheyenne or Guernsey branch would be. This would make a through line from Chicago to San Francisco with which the Oregon trunk line could be connected at some point in northern California. The line would give the Burlington a share of the Sacramento valley traffic, and a feeder might be built through the San Joaquin valley. With the Oregon trunk line connection, another line would be opened to eastern Washington, Idaho and Montana."

COUPLE MARRIED ON SUNDAY MORN

In the presence of about thirty relatives and friends, Campbell J. Vaughn, an employe of Holland & Holland, and Miss Irma Brown were quietly married at the residence of the bride, 149 Clark street, yesterday morning at 10 o'clock, Rev. Duncan Wallace officiating.

A delightful wedding breakfast was served immediately after the ceremony. The bride is a niece of J. H. Brownell.

NIGHT RIDERS AGAIN BURNING TOBACCO

BROOKSVILLE, Ky., Oct. 10.—Night riders have resumed operations in this section. They burned the barn of Edward Johnson, near Willow, in Bracken county, last night. Three thousand pounds of tobacco were destroyed. Johnson had not pooled his tobacco with the Burleigh Tobacco Society.

Removes Poisons of Catarrh and Rheumatism from the Blood

For catarrh of the head, use a teaspoonful of salt and a quarter teaspoonful of borax dissolved in a pint of warm water. Snuff, this mixture through the nostrils twice daily and immediate relief is experienced. To cure, a constitutional blood remedy must be used. Catarrh and rheumatism are both due to accumulated poisons in the system. These poisons must be eliminated.

The following simple home mixture effectually acts on the kidneys, the bowels and the skin, causing them to resume their functions quickly and properly:

Get one-half ounce fluid extract Buchu, one ounce compound fluid Balmwort, and two ounces syrup Sarsaparilla compound. Mix and take a teaspoonful after each meal and one at retiring. Many cases of catarrh, rheumatism and kidney trouble have already benefited by this treatment.

TAFT SMILES UPON FRESNO

Says Final Greetings at Train

Capt. Butts Declares Kearney Drive Most Beautiful He Has Seen

its side: "From Kern County—Symbolical of the policies which you represent." Some persons are inclined to blame Congressman Smith for the joke, but he denies that he had anything to do with leaving the gourd in the car of the president.

CATCHING LAST GIMPSES.

Alighting from the car in which he had ridden since leaving his special train, he walked with a quick step through the passageway of about thirty feet to the steps of the Mayflower, his private Pullman car. This was the last car on the train. A few moments crowd had gathered at the depot to catch a final glimpse of Taft and to bid him good-bye.

A half hour before the arrival of the president and party from the trip in to the rural districts, Chief Shaw and his corps of mounted patrolmen and plain clothes men arrived on the scene and from then until the time Taft stepped from the machine the officers were kept busy keeping the crowd behind the ropes. Detective Dreuth and Patrolmen Davis, Knight and Goehring worked among the throng around the train and succeeded in forcing the eager spectators back until a passageway thirty feet in width was formed from the edge of the platform to the rear of the train.

The mounted police kept the crowd off the street. Four state railway detectives assisted the policemen among the crowd. At 5:19 a youth who had climbed to the top of one of the posts supporting the shed and shouted: "Here he comes." A ripple of muffled applause and hand-clapping followed, while everybody stood on his or her tip-toes to catch a glimpse of Taft as he alighted from the automobile and proceeded to the Mayflower. For a brief minute or two the president hesitated before he entered the coach. He shook hands cordially with all the officials who had accompanied him on the trip. To each he smilingly said "Good-bye," with the accent on the first syllable.

The state police hustled the crowd away from the railing of the car and Taft jauntily mounted the steps. By this time it was rapidly growing dark and but for the few tiny electric lights, it would have been difficult to discern the features of the distinguished visitor. Just before bidding his hosts farewell, those in the rear of the crowd who were unable to see the big fellow, although standing on their tiptoes in an effort to do so, grew impatient, and many calls were heard: "Cut the hand-shaking short, Bill, and give us a glimpse of you," and "Hurry, Bill, we've been waiting a long time to get a last look at you."

"WHEN RAISINS GO UP."

As the train whistle sounded, Taft sprung onto the platform, at the same time waving his hand to the officials he had just left. A faint cheer arose, and someone in the crowd yelled, "Come again, Bill."

"Thank you, I'll come again when I can," replied the big figure in the dim light with the "smile that won't come off" still on his features.

"We'll treat you right," said another voice.

"I know that, but I hope to come when the price of raisins is higher," shot back the president in an instant. "You are rich, anyhow."

Those within earshot of the president laughed heartily, and he joined with them. A few started to cheer when the familiar salutation, "Hello Bill," came from far off in the crowd.

"How do you do," said Taft, waving his hat and smiling.

As the engineer applied the steam and the train began to move, the spectators waved their hats and shouted in unison, "Good-bye, Bill."

As the train gathered headway, the crowd broke and followed the rear of the car for a block. As the special disappeared among the long rows of freight cars in the yard, Taft was still standing on the rear platform waving his hat.

DECORATED ENGINE.

The engine, No. 1451, which carried the special out of Fresno was in charge of Conductor George Day, with P. A. Murray at the throttle and T. E. Harvey, the fireman. This crew carried the train to Bakersfield, where another engine and crew were procured.

After the arrival of the special from the north, the engine was taken to the roundhouse, No. 1451 was brought out, but its appearance was not the same as the one just housed. Assistant Superintendent J. D. Brennan of this division and G. E. Cameron, general yardmaster of this city, had decorated the iron "greyhound" from the tender to the cowcatcher. Bunting in profusion covered its sides and the work was viewed by hundreds who had gathered to greet Taft.

J. F. Kenlin, captain of the state police, sent four of his best men to Fresno with the train. These were under the direction of M. T. Bowler, Local Southern Pacific Officers Pickens and McDonald worked in conjunction with the visiting detectives.

Particularly enthusiastic over the beauties of Kearney drive was Captain Butts, who accompanied the president. Captain Butts has been over a good portion of the world and his opinions as expressed are therefore interesting. He stated both to President Taft and Mayor Rowell that during his entire travels he had never seen a more beautiful drive than the one at Kearney Park, and the only one that in his estimation compares with it is the "Las Palmas" drive of Cuba.

GIVEN FRUITS AND FLOWERS.

While the president was out on his ride his baggage car was well loaded down with Fresno fruit gathered through the Chamber of Commerce and which will keep him supplied for some time to come. The contributors were as follows:

Hon. M. F. Tarpey, grapes; George C. Roeding, grapes and dried fruits; W. F. Toomey, fried figs; T. J. Hammond, dried figs; Dr. Hare, grapes; Mr. Goodrich of Kearney avenue; grapes; Pioneer Fruit Company employes, per Mr. Weyant, grapes; Frank Laning, peaches; C. H. Williams, peaches; George Myers of Del Rey, grapes; B. Thurber, Kearney avenue, grapes; Mr. Maxson, grape fruit; A. L. Hobbs, raisins; V. V. Shepherd, strawberries; Mr. Dyer of Sanger, orange honey; Barton Vineyard Company, wine; Ves Lewis of Pine Ridge, apples.

In addition to this Charles Chambers, the park commissioner, presented the president with a monster but very neat basket of flowers. The visitor was also given a large number of the post card "Buster Brown" cartons containing the highest grade special layer raisins. These were put up under the direction of Postmaster Short

DESPONDENT JAP COMMITS SUICIDE

Hangs Himself To Rafter In Room At 932 China Alley; Inquest Today

Becoming despondent through sickness, S. Kasawara, a Japanese man, aged about 30 years, committed suicide between 6 and 7 o'clock last night by hanging himself in his room at 932 China alley. The man tied one end of a rope to a rafter in his room over a barber shop and then slipped the other end around his neck, dying of strangulation.

Kasawara came to this country from Japan about seven years ago but came to Fresno only about four days ago, loking for work. Coroner Bean was called upon to take the remains. An inquest will in all probability be held today.

BALLSTON, N. Y., Oct. 10.—Fifty workmen bound from Ballston to Schenectady were injured, many of them badly, today in a collision between trolley cars on the Schenectady street railway here. The collision was due to a fog and took place at the outlet station south of Ballston. The motorman was fatally crushed.

LOS ANGELES IS READY FOR TAFT

Streets Brilliantly Decorated in President's Honor —To Be Shown San Pedro

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 10.—Los Angeles is all in readiness tonight to receive President Taft when he arrives on his special train at 7:45 tomorrow morning. When the train bearing the presidential party arrives at River Station, the first Los Angeles stop, it will be met by a large committee of citizens, headed by Mayor Alexander, who will escort the president direct to San Pedro, the harbor city of Los Angeles. The ceremonies in connection with the official welcome will be deferred until the train bearing the president and the committee returns to Los Angeles from the harbor at 1 o'clock in the afternoon. The official greeting will be extended at Arcade Station.

The automobile parade through the city's streets, the welcome by the school children, and the laying of the cornerstone of a new high school by the president will follow. President Taft will then be taken to the home of his sister, Mrs. W. A. Edwards, wife of Dr. W. A. Edwards, on West Adams street. Here he will spend the night. The banquet in his honor will be tendered that evening in Shrine Auditorium, where 700 covers have been laid.

President Taft will spend two days as a guest of the city of Los Angeles, but the second day will be devoted entirely to outside cities and towns. Leaving the city about 9 o'clock of the second day by special trolley car, he will visit the national soldiers' home at Sawtelle and address the thousands of veterans residing at the home. From there the party will proceed to Pasadena, where a luncheon is to be given by the Pasadena board of trade. Here he will reboard his special train and swing out through the great orange belt of Riverside and San Bernardino counties, making stops by automobile and train at the principal cities and towns of the sections and concluding with a dinner at Riverside Tuesday night, the president will resume his journey eastward, entering Arizona by way of Yuma.

The most elaborate plans have been worked out for the welcome of the president during his visit to Southern California. Tonight the city is gay with colors that bedeck the principal streets through which the chief executive will ride. American flags and pictures of the president are everywhere in evidence. Practically all business houses are draped in bunting and flags. The ornamental lamp posts that line Broadway, Spring and Main streets have been sheathed from top to bottom in long leaves of green palms, and early tomorrow hanging baskets of flowers will be suspended from the electric light clusters that line the route of the president's march. It has been the aim of the local committee to make the welcome here one of as much simplicity as is conformable with the heartiness of the greeting the people desire to extend. The banquet, while very extravagantly elaborate and unique in general appointments, floral decorations and other features, is to have a simple menu, and the speeches to be delivered on the occasion by the local orators are to be brief. But two addresses besides that of President Taft will be delivered.

The subject of the president's address on that occasion is not known, but it is anticipated that he will make it of as local a character as possible and it is predicted that he will touch upon the tariff bill increase on lemon duties and the more recent raise in railroad rates on that product—a topic of great concern to this section.

The trip to San Pedro harbor—the ocean gateway which is the pride and hope of Los Angeles—was designed to give the president a chance at a further outing and to make it possible for him to familiarize himself with the great projects under way there in which the federal government has already spent several millions. The president's party will be taken over the harbor in launches, and later, in automobiles, be driven to the site of the proposed fortifications of the bay.

Tomorrow is to be a general holiday and the schools of the city will be dismissed in order to allow the children a chance to see the chief executive of the nation. The pupils will be ranged along the streets at various vantage points. Practically the entire population of Los Angeles and thousand from nearby cities and towns and countryside will be congregated to cheer the president's progress through the streets. Hundreds of visitors have already arrived from Arizona, Nevada and even Old Mexico and tonight all of the principal hotels are crowded.

ENTERTAINMENT COURSE.

The cost of a course ticket to seven fine entertainments to be given this winter by the Y. M. C. A. at the Parlor Lecture Club building, is three dollars. If you don't want to, you don't need to pay that cash. You can pay one dollar at each of the first three entertainments. But the Y. M. C. A. wants to sell just 350 tickets—no more—to cover the cost of talent. If you intend buying tickets, won't you phone the Y. M. C. A., Main 697, right away, while you think of it, and tell them how many course tickets you will take.

It will lighten the work of the entertainment committee and you will be sure of getting a ticket.

ENDURANCE OF TAFT WONDERFUL

Reporters Call Him Bundle of Energy

Secret of President Is To Lose No Sleep While On Train

That President Taft is the possessor of a great constitution and is a most wonderful traveler is the assertion made by the newspaper men who are members of his party.

"I have never seen anything like it," said Robert T. Small of the Associated Press. "He never seems to tire. He has actually worn some of us younger men out and as the end of the trip is just one month away to the day there is no telling what he will do to us before we get back to Washington.

"One reason that President Taft can stand the trip so well is that he is able to sleep. The excitement has no effect on him. After he has delivered a speech he will retire to his car just as though he had simply been on a short walk around town. He will almost immediately fall off into a sleep and there is no waking him until the next destination is reached. Then some one will walk into his apartment and give him a gentle shake. He will awake promptly without protest and in a moment be ready for the reception which always awaits him.

"Contrary to general belief," continued Small, "the president does not prepare his speeches, except of course his more important ones. He has delivered eight of these since he started on his recent trip. But all of the other addresses have been delivered on the spur of the moment. We newspaper men who are with him have no idea what he is going to say when he mounts the platform any more than do the people before him. We have a stenographer along to take his speeches, which would not be necessary if the contention were true that his speeches are the canned product."

ADMIRES YOSEMITE

"Nowhere has the endurance of the president been tested to such an extent as in the Yosemite valley. He was actually lost in admiration of the beauties of the Wonderland, and he was continually on the go. He seemed to ride when he could have done so instead of walking. The result was that the remainder of us felt rather backward about riding while he walked. Now we wish that we had ridden. Some of us are so stiff in the joints that we should be in bed. But not so with the president. Despite his great weight he has not complained once. He is simply one massive bundle of condensed energy. I really believe that if the stopping places were but ten miles apart he would be ready to parade in each city and to deliver a speech whenever called upon. He has not complained of being exhausted once during the entire trip and he seems to regard it all as a vacation.

"One thing that the members of his party are forced to guard against is that the president will not overdo things. The people along the route are so enthusiastic about his visits that they extend all sorts of invitations. Should he accept one part of these he would not finish his trip in a year and despite his great endurance he would eventually be so tired that he would be forced to his bed. The people also seem to have wonderful ideas about the capacity of the president's stomach. Each section of course makes a specialty of raising its own particular products. Upon the arrival of the executive he is plied with good things to eat. It is a peculiar fact that he is not continually laid up with indigestion."

TRIP FROM VALLEY

The president and his party made the entire trip to Fresno yesterday from El Portal, the entrance to Yosemite valley. There he spent a restful night after his visit in Wonderland. In the morning he arose and had breakfast and was soon ready for the return trip to the main line. Along the way many places of interest were pointed out to him that were famous in the early mining days. The president echoed much interest and at the small towns en route where the natives had congregated in the hope of catching a glimpse of him he stepped out on the platform and extended greetings and waved his hand in farewell when the train started again.

The president thoroughly enjoyed his trip into the Yosemite and stated to the members of his party that he would always remember the occasion.

Arriving at Merced yesterday morning, President Taft and Governor Gillett attended services at the Presbyterian church. That the president would be present was more or less expected and the services were therefore appropriate for the occasion. Though the president on his way into the valley had already delivered a speech at Merced a large crowd was present at the station yesterday to see him again and the train pulled out for Fresno amid a waving of hands and handkerchiefs and expressions of good will.

The train made no further stops until it reached Fresno, and as a consequence a good sized crowd that had gathered in Madera at the depot in the hope that the president would deliver at least a rear platform speech was greatly disappointed. After leaving Fresno the president was scheduled to deliver a speech from the train at Bakersfield and then continue his way to Los Angeles.

FRESNO'S WEATHER

The newspaper men were all agreeably surprised with Fresno weather. They stated that they had been informed that the climate in Fresno, and in fact, throughout this section of the state, was "something fierce." They were told that it was no uncommon thing for the thermometer to register 120 degrees in the shade, and that when the mercury hovered about the 100 mark local people would promptly don their winter clothes. But yesterday was an ideal day and all of the visitors stated that if that was a sample of Fresno weather they would just as soon settle here, so far as the climate is concerned, as at any place they have yet visited.

WRESTLER ADMITS GAME IS CROOKED

Says Crowd Must Be "Jollied Along" in Order To Make Business Pay

SEATTLE, Oct. 10.—Joe Carroll, alias Ole Marsky, the wrestler, indicted in Nebraska and Iowa for alleged use of the mails to defraud in connection with the Mayberry gang of wrestling and foot race promoters, was released on $3500 bail today. He takes his arrest with perfect unconcern, declaring the charge against him cannot be proved. In a newspaper interview he said:

"If there is a wrestler who is not crooked I do not know him, and I know all of them. If the men who wrestle should be on the square and settle their differences, how many hours' entertainment would the public have? We have simply got to jolly the game along in order to keep up public interest."

Bert Warner and Wyn Harris are still in the county jail.

MUSCLES ARE ALL TORN FROM BONE

Rancher Webb Singularly Injured in Collision

White River Hay Baler Seriously Hurt By Falling Into a Feed Hopper

PORTERVILLE, Oct. 10.—W. J. Webb, a prosperous rancher of the east side, was seriously injured and may lose the left arm as the result of a collision with a delivery wagon on Main street, last Friday night about 9 o'clock, while he was riding to his home, a short distance from this city. Friday was a dark, cloudy night, and for some reason one of the street lights on the upper end of Main street had gone out. Webb was riding rapidly, and when he was at the corner of Morton, Leonhardt's fish wagon came driving rapidly around the corner and Webb was run down before he could avoid the danger. After the accident, Webb was assisted to his home and surgeons summoned. They found that the muscles of the forearm had been torn away from the bone almost all the way from the elbow to the wrist and the larger muscle almost to the elbow. Neither Webb nor the driver of the wagon is able to explain how he could have been so seriously hurt. There is a grave question whether the arm can be saved from amputation.

L. C. Morrison, a rancher well past middle age, was badly bruised and suffered a broken leg shortly before noon yesterday by falling into a feed chopper of a hay baler, upon which he was at work on the Mosher Bay flats in the White River country. Morrison was feeding the machine and was crushing the hay down into the compressor from time to time with the foot. Just as the plunger which forms the bales was coming up into position, he slipped and lost out of the feeding apparatus. He suffered a compound fracture of the leg below the knee joint, besides extensive and painful bruises. The other employes on the machine hurried the injured man to this city, where he was given surgical treatment. Morrison's condition is considered grave, not only because he is comparatively advanced in age, but because this is not the first time he has met with a powder accident by which he was quite seriously injured, and in which the same leg was broken.

Guy T. Rice, who has associated with him two of the leading nursery firms of the south, is here from Los Angeles to superintend the planting of extensive tracts of orange land for which they have recently secured title. Two tracts are owned by the company, one of 120 acres in the Dinuba district, all of which will be planted this coming season, and one of 200 acres in the Strathmore country. As much of the latter tract will be planted as trees may be furnished.

DISCOVERY DAY LOCAL OBSERVANCE

High Mass in the Forenoon at St. John's and a Ball in the Evening

The local council of the Knights of Columbus is perfecting the final arrangements for the celebration of Columbus Day tomorrow.

Through the efforts of this order which takes its name from the great discoverer, the legislatures of California, New York and other states have decreed the day a legal holiday, and everywhere interest is keen to make the first observance of it a memorable one.

In the capital city of California, the celebration will last three days and scarcely a city in the state will let the day pass without some commemorative exercises. In Fresno the day will be observed by the Knights with religious services in the morning in St. John's church, and in the evening with a ball at the Hughes Hotel.

At St. John's church solemn high mass will be sung at 9 o'clock and a sermon will be preached by one of the visiting fathers on a subject dealing with the event of the day. The ball will be opened at 8:45 in the evening and at intervals during its progress vocal numbers will be rendered to help to the general enjoyment.

JAPANESE DOING WELL IN MEXICO

Minister From Tokio Comments on the Prosperity of Colonies in the Republic

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 10.—Minoru Aruikawa, minister plenipotentiary and envoy extraordinary of the Emperor of Japan to the Mexican government, was in Los Angeles for two hours today on his way to San Francisco, whence he will sail to his native land as soon as possible. He has been called home by the emperor.

Minister Aruikawa spoke briefly of the condition of parts of Mexico by the Japanese, who are settling on large orchards and acquiring various kinds of farms. Many Japanese are also employed in the mines of Mexico. He said the Japanese are prospering in Mexico and that conditions are as good as could be expected in any foreign land.

A number of the foremost Japanese merchants and professional men of Los Angeles visited the hotel to meet him. The minister to Mexico has attended over a period of three years. He was unable to state when he will return to that country or not. He left for San Francisco tonight.

PIONEER WOMEN GIVE WELCOME

Will Have Open Headquarters During Portola Week

Their Reception and Dance on the 21st Will Be a Fine Affair

The Association of Pioneer Women of California will have headquarters at the Hotel Argonaut in San Francisco during Portola week. Pioneers and their friends from all over the state will be welcome.

The Pioneer women will give a reception and dance in honor of the Portola Festival on Thursday evening, October 21st, at Pioneer Hall. Five hundred invitations have been sent out, and it promises to be one of the finest affairs ever given by the association. Don Gaspar de Portola (Don Nicholas Covarrubias), the queen (Virginia), the officers of the army and navy, state and city officials have been invited.

Those in charge of the reception and dance are the following:

RECEPTION COMMITTEE.

Mrs. Anna E. McIntyre, chairman, Mrs. Sarah C. Gorham, president, Mrs. Agnes B. Macdonald, Miss Louise M. Berrymon, Mrs. Caroline North Whitcomb, Mrs. Anna Y. Reed, Mrs. Margaret F. McCormick, Miss Mary J. Bragg, Mrs. Mary P. Pendergast.

ENTERTAINMENT COMMITTEE.

Miss Kathryn L. Cole, chairman; Mrs. Carrie L. Burr, Dr. Winnifred K. Byrne, Mrs. Mary R. Coghlan, Miss Blanche E. Curry, Miss Ellen B. Dolliver, Mrs. Fannie M. Halenbone, Mrs. Angelin G. Gardener, Mrs. Sarah S. Gunner, Mrs. Ella Lees Leigh, Mrs. Hermenia M. Pollock, Mrs. Laura H. Phelps, Mrs. Helen B. Swett, Mrs. Alida W. Terrill, Miss Grace L. Trevor.

The objects of the association are to collect and preserve the history and reminiscences of Pioneer Women; to cultivate social intercourse, to foster the industries and development of California, to sympathize with and encourage workers, and to co-operate with those who are working for the preservation of the forests and song birds; to familiarize the members with the laws of the state bearing on the above-mentioned interests, and to work for any other interests which may appeal to the Association of Pioneer Women.

The officers of the association are:

Mrs. Sarah C. Gorham, president.

Mrs. Mary J. Bragg, first vice-president.

Mrs. Mary P. Pendergast, second vice-president.

Mrs. Hermenia M. Pollock, recording secretary.

Mrs. Carrie L. Burr, financial secretary.

Mrs. Margaret F. McCormick, treasurer.

Mrs. Cornelia Eckert, marshal.

Directors: Mrs. Sarah A. Keith, Mrs. Anna E. McIntyre, Mrs. Emeline North Whitcomb.

VESSEL WRECKED ON TAHITI REEF

Passengers of Norwegian Steamship Have a Narrow Escape From Drowning

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 10.—Several passengers, the captain and a portion of the crew of the Norwegian steamship Ocean Queen, which was wrecked September 24th on a reef off the coast of Tahiti, arrived here today on the steamship Mariposa from Papeete, bringing details of the disaster. The party includes John T. Arundel, deputy chairman of the Pacific Phosphate Company, Limited, of London, lessee of the vessel; Arundel's two daughters, Lillian and Sydney, his private secretary, E. H. Jay, Miss Whibley and Captain Johannessen.

The Ocean Queen left Papeete September 15th and early the next morning, while passing the settlement of Maunia, on the east side of the island, the engines ceased running and it was discovered that the aft eccentric rod was bent. A strong wind was blowing toward shore and this with an unusual current swept the vessel upon a reef while the crew was attempting to break the rod.

The passengers were taken off immediately in the lifeboats and the captain and crew remained to save the baggage. About 1 o'clock the last man left the ship and a few minutes later it had completely disappeared, breaking up and sinking within thirty seconds of the time of the first lurch.

The Ocean Queen was making her maiden voyage. She left England on March 10th under charter to the phosphate company.

The vessel was a large steamer of 2189 tons burden, 250 feet long and 44 feet beam. She was owned by Jacob Christensen of Bergen, Norway.

PAY HELD UP TILL TAXES ARE PAID

HONOLULU, Oct. 10.—There was consternation among the employes of the territorial government on the last day of the month when the auditor held up the salary warrants of a large number of them because they had not paid their taxes. The auditor announced that they must help to pay their own salaries by paying their debts in the territory, and that hereafter the salary of any man who is in debt to the government will be held up until he shall have squared himself. As a result there was an unprecedented rush on the tax office by a large number of territorial employes clamoring to be allowed to contribute each his mite toward the support of the government. The salary warrants were released only upon those for whom they were drawn showing receipts from the tax office.

The action was taken by Deputy Auditor Mays in the absence of Auditor Fisher, who is on the mainland. Auditor Fisher is himself heavily in debt to the territory for back taxes.

RUSSIA TO SPEND MILLIONS FOR ROADS

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 10.—The extraordinary budget of the ministry of railroads has been submitted to the duma. It calls for $21,100,000 for new construction in 1910. All of this amount, with the exception of $163,000, will be expended in Siberia on the Amur railroad. The sum of $11,500,000 is allotted to the railroad line around Lake Baikal and $12,500,000 for double-tracking the trans-Siberian railway.

HELD FOR BLOWING UP A LOUISIANA DAM.

JENNINGS, La., Oct. 10.—Charged with complicity in the blowing up of the Mermentau dam, which protects the lands of hundreds of rice farmers, the United States commissioner here found over six citizens here yesterday.

It is alleged that ill feeling between cattle raisers and rice growers of this section resulted in the dynamiting of the dam.

Consuls Write of American Shoes

Uncle Sam's consuls and commercial agents are developing the reportorial instinct these days. As a matter of fact, they are all expected to do regular assignments on the day's news paper, which is issued every day except Sunday by the Bureau of Manufactures of the Department of Commerce and Labor under the name of "Daily Consular and Trade Reports." This newspaper is quite as instructive and often far more interesting than Uncle Sams' better known format, the Congressional Record, while its editorial management and "make-up" is such as to indicate that the folks in charge are permitted some discretion in selecting topics for exploitation. For instance, the color recently interviewed a man possessed of considerable experience in foreign trade and elicited this:

"If the American trade wants to take hold in foreign countries it must not try to impose its own ideas on them, but conform in every way to the customs of the foreign countries in which it seeks to deal. A point to which American firms cannot give too much attention is the foreign correspondence. The American style of business letters is all right at home, but when corresponding with foreigners, Latin people especially, it should be done in their own language as far as possible, or else in English very carefully worded so not as to excite the susceptibility of these people, who, nine times out of ten, have only a very imperfect knowledge of English. I know of several good chances of making important business transactions which have been killed outright through poor correspondence. I sincerely believe that American salesmanship, the excellence of American manufactures, the respect of customs that obtain in the various countries, and the same attention as that given by the foreign manufacturers to their export trade will be powerful factors in a successful competition against the foreigners on their own grounds.

The editor of the "Daily Reports" applies this suggestion concerning American salesmanship in foreign countries by playing a broadside with the shoe business as his subject. Rounding up his consular reporters all over the world, he asks for data which will benefit Americans. At Bordeaux France, he get this very good information from his correspondent, Consul Alfred K. Moe:

"In nearly all the larger shoe stores it is quite an ordinary matter to see French shoes displayed as modeled on American lines, but it is very difficult, outside of Paris, to procure a well-made American shoe. The French style of shoe is long and narrow. If American manufacturers made themselves acquainted with the particular demands of the French public and the trade, and produced an article in conformity to those demands, they would quickly discover a most profitable business here in every kind of shoe, and as prices rule higher here the French tariff rate on shoes can hardly interfere with profitable transactions in American shoes."

The correspondent of the "Daily Reports" in Nantes is Consul Louis Goldschmidt, who mentions the fact in his letter that no American shoes are obtainable in that French city of 170,000 inhabitants. He enters into an intelligent discussion of the possibilities for American trade, saying among other things:

"A few years ago American shoes, although worn to some extent, were unpopular owing to the custom prevalent of wearing long, pointed, narrow shoes of French make. Shoes marked as American or 'forme Americane' are now seen in the windows of nearly all stores where shoes are sold, and they are becoming quite fashionable. The French shoe made after the American style is of good quality and has a good appearance, but somehow does not fit as comfortably as the real American shoe. Whether this is due to the cut of the uppers, of the soles, or the general make-up is hard to tell. The time seems opportune for creating a market for real American shoes here, and the manufacturer who will take the trouble to carefully look over the country and establish agencies for the exclusive sale of his shoes in the principal cities can undoubtedly establish a good business.

"Most of the retail shoe stores in Nantes are only agencies of the principal French manufacturers. They are only branches of larger stores in other cities and sell only makes of a given manufacturer. There are dealers however, who would be glad to undertake the sale of American shoes, though the maximum duties have to be paid on American leather and shoes, while those from other countries come in at the minimum rates. The duty on a pair of boots for men or women is 2.5 francs maximum, and 1.5 francs minimum (1 franc equals 19.3 cents). There are a few stores in Paris which sell American shoes exclusively, and which do an excellent business among American residents and visitors and among the fashionable residents of the city, and as Paris leads everything relative to style and fashion, the other cities of France would only follow the lead if such American shoes could be obtained."

Not only does the editor of the "Daily Report" give this information from his correspondent, but he announces in a separate note that a list of the shoe dealers in Nantes is on file in the Bureau of Manufactures, where it can be obtained by any manufacturer who wishes to correspond with the Frenchmen.

* * * * *

There is room for a special American shoe store in Brunswick, Germany, says Consul Talbot J. Albert, who finds that there are no shoe factories in the city or in the Duchy of Brunswick. The retail shoe stores are supplied by factories in other parts of Germany. A factory in Frankfort has a large store in Brunswick and another at Madeburg is also represented. What is at least a novelty in Brunswick is that the retail stores have, in large measure, ceased to sell shoes under the manufacturers' names, selling them under special names or brands. While other sorts of shoes than the special brand are sold, a customer can only buy a particular brand at a particular store. Each brand has its particular shape of shoe said to be most suitable to the formation of the foot. The shapes in many cases are similar to the American form of shoe, and not long and narrow, the style hitherto much in vogue in Germany.

"The reason for the failure of the American shoe heretofore to take a hold in Brunswick may be ascribed to the inferior quality put upon the market here," writes Mr. Albert. "Persons who have bought American shoes elsewhere in Germany testify to their being superior in quality to the German shoe, as better in finish, having easier soles and more elastic uppers, and as durable as or more durable than the German. Such American shoes have never been offered for sale in Brunswick. Meanwhile valuable time has been lost. American machinery, or machinery similar to American, has been introduced into the German shoe factories, and American shoes have been imitated. The only way American shoes can now be introduced into Brunswick is by the establishment of a store for their special sale. Then the goods must recommend themselves by their superior merits and meet German prices."

There is not an American shoe for sale in the city of Nuremberg, says George Nicholas Iff, American consul at that city, but a leading dealer has recently given an order for a well-known American shoe through the Berlin agency of the American manufacturer in order to try the experiment. Nuremberg is a city of 370,000 inhabitants, and it is a matter of surprise to know that an American shoe cannot be bought there. In most of the shops are seen shoes marked "American form," "American style," or "American fashion," but all of them are made in Germany. These imitations seem to indicate the superiority of the American shoe. Mr. Iff believes an American shoe business can be established in Nuremberg. He says:

"There is no reason why a reasonable market for a stylish, moderately priced American shoe cannot be created in Nuremberg, such a shoe as retails in the United States for $3.50 to $5. The German shoes are cheaper, and some of the German imitations of the American shoe are quite good. There are no resident Americans here as there are in Berlin, Dresden and Munich, to help make the demand. The only Americans who come here are tourists and buyers, who remain only a few days. It must be remembered that a demand for what would be here an unknown article cannot be created in a week or month, or even in a year. It will take time, and the manufacturer will have to bear the expense of the introduction of the product. The dealer will not do so. The time seems right for the attempt, and with proper advertising. Persistence and patience until the merits of the goods are recognized, there is no reason why a profitable business should not be built up here in American shoes."

* * * * *

In its search for shoe information the Daily Reports investigated conditions in The Netherlands, and through Consul-General S. Listoe of Rotterdam learns that there is a growing demand for high-class American shoes in the low countries. It appears that the trade in American shoes there is growing and that many dealers are now handling the better grades of American shoes. The prices range from $3 to $6. The buyers are of the fashionable set. It is said that if American manufacturers were as liberal with their terms and as quick in shipping as are the Dutch, French, Austrian and German shoe manufacturers, the sale of American shoes could be greatly extended. Says the consul-general:

"The leading shoe dealers here now handle some kind of American shoes and should manufacturers not as yet representing desire to introduce their products they must be prepared to start their agent here in business, as no dealer of means will take the risk of introducing a new brand as long as he is served well by the manufacturer who provides the brands he handles, and as long as these brands give satisfaction. American manufacturers of all products who desire to enter business in The Netherlands must be prepared to give 30 to 90 days credit; to quote prices f. o. b. Rotterdam or Amsterdam; to supply representatives here with a liberal sample stock, to be paid for at the convenience of such representatives; to make liberal allowances for advertising in the Dutch newspapers; to send out experienced traveling men for the purpose of instructing agents to get in touch with the trade and learn the needs and requirements of the country."

* * * * *

A very interesting contribution to the shoe literature of the Daily Reports comes from Consul John H. Grout of Odessa, who says:

"Russia in general, and this district in particular, offers a field for exploitation on the part of American boot and shoe manufacturers that demands the personal attention of direct representatives rather than the sole method of correspondence. Competition is to be found here, but, if properly studied, it will be found surmountable. Goods from the principal boot and shoe manufacturers of St. Petersburg and Warsaw are on sale in all the large cities and towns. The styles are much different from American. In the cheaper and commoner articles produced in Russia American competition would presumably be more difficult than in those intended to do for the well-to-do classes, who really demand a high-class article of good style. One point in favor of foreign producers is the higher wages now paid and the shorter hours of labor, by which the Russian manufacturer is now able to hold his own than he was a few years ago.

"As a rule, Russian shoes are not as elegant or as well made as the American article. Recently several dealers in the city of Odessa obtained small quantities of American boots and shoes and placed them on sale. Notwithstanding that prices as high as $8.25 had in some cases to be charged, owing to duties, for shoes that in the United States retail at $4 per pair, the goods were favorably regarded and quite a large number were sold. One dealer is now trying to find an American manufacturer who can supply him with cheaper goods than those which he at first bought as an experiment, in order to enable him to place them on sale at less price and do a larger business. As compared with the home-made article, the American boots and shoes that have been displayed in the shop windows here have been far more attractive, while the styles have been favored. Some American makes of ladies' slippers ought to find favor here, while it is believed that for winter wear ladies' high-heel shoes would find a fair market. The peasant and workingman wear boots reaching to the knee, made of calfskin and cowhide.

"Boots and shoes manufactured in this country are lasted more after the Italian style, long, tapering toes, with low, flat ends. Soles of all thicknesses are used, while the uppers are of various patterns, mostly home-up. This refers to a majority of the local products, but occasionally one sees goods modeled after German and French patterns. Duties upon imported boots and shoes are rather high, goods made of calfskin being charged at $1 per pound by general tariff, 77 cents per pound by conventional tariff. Ladies' silk or kid shoes are taxed $2 per pound in the general and $1.21 in the conventional tariff. Imports from the United States pay the conventional rates. The Russian pound is nine-tenths of the English. It has been noticed, in the case of the dealers here trying the experiment of selling American shoes, that they have placed in their windows the show cards provided by the American manufacturers. While very attractive, these would have been very much more so if worded in Russian. This should be looked into by the visiting representative. Store windows here are, as a rule, tastefully dressed and lend themselves well to displaying goods. Attractive show cards are readily placed. Representatives of foreign firms, with samples of goods upon arriving at frontier custom-houses have certain formalities to go through and certain charges to pay, but none of these is usually found to be difficult of arrangement. At the present time quite a number of American houses in other lines are doing a good business here, but all of their heads by sending their personal representatives to study the business conditions of the country."

MISERY FROM A BAD STOMACH AND DYSPEPSIA WILL VANISH

A little Diapepsin will make you feel fine in five minutes.

Take your sour, out-of-order stomach—or maybe you call it Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Gastritis or Catarrh of Stomach; it doesn't matter—take your stomach trouble right with you to your Pharmacist and ask him to open a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin and let you eat one 22-grain Triangule and see if within five minutes there is left any trace of your former misery.

The correct name for your trouble is Food Fermentation—food souring; the Digestive organs become weak, there is lack of gastric juice; your food is only half digested, and you become affected with loss of appetite, pressure and fullness after eating, vomiting nausea, heartburn, griping in bowels, tenderness in the pit of stomach, bad taste in mouth, constipation, pain in limbs, sleeplessness, belching of gas, biliousness, sick headache, nervousness, dizziness or many other similar symptoms.

If your appetite is fickle, and nothing tempts you, or you belch gas, or if you feel bloated after eating, or your food lies like a lump on your stomach, you can make up your mind that at the bottom of all this there is but one cause—fermentation of undigested food.

Prove to yourself in five minutes that your stomach is as good as any; that there is nothing really wrong. Stop this fermentation and begin eating what you want without fear of discomfort or misery.

Almost instant relief is waiting for you. It is merely a matter of how soon you take a little Diapepsin.

Elegant in Appearance

Kryptoks are light, solid lenses, with perfectly even, unbroken surfaces. They are absolutely indestructible except by breakage, and present no hard "lines" obstructive to sight and destructive to nerves.

As a matter of course there are imitations, but no imitation of anything ever equals the genuine article, and it is generally conceded that no one who practices the art of living upon other people's genius is entitled to public encouragement.

"Practically the same," "Just as good," "Made on the same principle," etc., etc., are the quibbling terms you may hear applied to imitations. Don't take them.

Kryptoks are made to fit the near and far vision requirements of any individual. They are by far the most elegant in appearance, the most serviceable, and the only perfect bifocal lenses.

GREAT SIMPLICITY

The head of a great nation, the greatest on earth, on an official tour, designed among other things to impress the people, comes to a city, and he is met by the mayor, the local committee, and just enough mounted policemen to clear the way. In dress and manner like any other citizen, he rides through the streets, mounts the rostrum, and delivers to the people a simple, earnest address. Then, without pomp or display, he departs, followed by the cheers and good wishes of all the people.

That is the greatness of simplicity, the last and highest achievement in the art of government. In one of its aspects, government is necessarily theatrical—it must appeal to the imagination. The highest appeal that can be made, to the best developed imaginations, is the appeal of simplicity. It is a high tribute to the quality of American civic imagination that the thing which most impresses it is simplicity.

Consider the contrast when the head of a European nation goes among his people. Pomp and circumstance and the panoplies of glory accompany him. The military is everywhere in evidence and there are special ornamental regiments which have almost no other function than to adorn these ceremonials. Gay uniforms and stately ceremony are universal. And when the ruler speaks, his words are carefully pruned by his ministers to the merest platitudes. He may be distinguished in ermine robes, but not in great and significant speech.

Both methods probably have their place. The feathers and the war-club of the savage chief are appeals to the imagination. From that grade up to the highest point of gorgeousness, and then still higher to the greatness of simplicity, the fine art of government has gone. We may rejoice that we are at the top.

"MARKING" A LAW

It has remained for Carroll Cook to discover that the race-track law is void because it is ungrammatical. We are not surprised at the contention. The process of appeal has become so much a competitive examination on the technical qualities of the papers that we need not wonder to see the supreme court called on to "mark" a law to see if it will "pass" on its grammar. The courts have made schoolboys of us all, and have subjected Justice herself to the marking-stick. Even the schoolmaster would not do that. He may "mark" the arithmetic papers, but he does not determine whether a boy played "hookey" by the spelling of his excuse.

One other contention Carroll Cook makes may turn out to be a boomerang. He objects to the law because it does not prohibit all sorts of betting. Have care! If the law against bookmaking is invalidated on that ground, the result will be to get a law that will prohibit betting generally. There would be no wrong nor harm in that, but certainly Mr. Cook's clients do not want it.

RATES MEETING

The business men of Fresno should not overlook the meeting in Einstein hall Tuesday evening to consider the matter of intervening before the Interstate Commerce Commission in behalf of terminal rates, or of some concession in that direction, for Fresno. This is the oldest and longest agitated question in Fresno—so old that most of us have become tired and discouraged with it. But here is the best and only practical opportunity we have ever had. There is a chance, even a probability, of getting some relief, and a certainty of getting a great deal more if we go after it than if we do not. There is no subject which touches so nearly the prosperity and growth of Fresno. But it is not worth while for a few men to continue the agitation and work unless they know they are backed by the community. This meeting should express and assure that support.

WELL DONE

Decidedly, the arrangements for yesterday's entertainment of President Taft in Fresno worked out to fine success. The police and committee arrangements were perfect and were effectively carried out; the demeanor of the crowd was beyond praise; the exercises at the park, under the charge of the Ministerial Union, were in admirable good taste, and won the praise of the president; and altogether, a difficult task was carried out without a hitch. President Hobbs and Secretary Robertson of the Chamber of Commerce, the committee on arrangements and its working subcommittees, the city officials, Chief Shaw and the patrolmen, and the people themselves all contributed to the admirable result, and general congratulations are in order.

AGED INVENTOR PROVES PATENT

Will Become Independently Rich as Result of Victory in Sugar Machinery Case

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 10. By a decision from the bench of the United States Court of Appeals, Timothy Carroll, a pioneer of Southern California, wins his fight to compel the Los Alamitos Sugar company to pay him royalty on his patent beet dump.

The decision crowns with victory the struggle of Carroll, who is 70 years of age, against poverty and hardships. It will make him independently rich before the expiration of his patents six years hence. It will put an end to litigation that commenced twelve years ago, shortly after the Los Alamitos Sugar company refused to recognize Carroll's rights to the patent. The decision will also affect the beet sugar industry all over the country as many factories will now pay the royalty and use the dumps.

Carroll brought the present suit against the Los Alamitos Sugar company for infringement in September, 1907. The case was tried before Judge Wellborn in the United States Circuit Court and a verdict in favor of Carroll returned. The company appealed to the United States Circuit Court and the transcript of the trial alone cost $1500.

The Los Alamitos Sugar company is required to pay several thousand dollars back royalty.

NAPOLEONS OF THE FARM

Empire of Agriculture Awaiting Conquest in the United States.

We have captains of industry, wizards of finance, and Napoleons of transportation. Why not Alexanders of the farm?

James J. Hill refers to the question of the food supply as the greatest problem of the age. If that be true there is in this country an empire of agriculture awaiting conquest, the richest domain of equal extent on the planet.

Except for a few great plantations in the days of slavery, a splendid ranch here and there in Texas, and the half dozen bonanza farms of Dakota, agriculture has not been pursued in this country on a great scale. If a genius for organization and direction can produce magical results in other directions, why should not similar ability work wonders on the fertile soil of this continent?

Considering the area of our improved land, our farm products are small, and yet their value this year is estimated at $8,000,000,000. The entire value of our manufactured products in 1905 was $14,800,000,000. Of our exports in 1908, amounting to $1,860,000000 only a little more than one-half came from the farm and the range. A land such as this has only inattention and ignorance to plead for the factory's superiority over the farm. Our agricultural products should be doubled.

There has been and still is some sensitiveness to great landed estates but the tendency in rural districts is toward tenant farming, the worst possible solution of the question. Most of the states of the North have more tenant farmers than Ireland. In this fact lies one of the most portentous dangers confronting agriculture. An industry carried on in sloth and waste by nomads cannot be profitable in money or citizenship.

A few wizards of wheat, Caesars of cotton, and monarchs of maize applying brains, energy, and capital to production would give the people of this country an example. Too many Americans are attempting to imitate those who by consolidation have made themselves masters of finance, commerce, manufactures, and speculation. No great harm will be done and much good may result if we set up a few sovereigns of the soil.—New York World.

Parsimony and Thrift.

That there is a decided difference between parsimony and thrift is shown in the following incident: A business man boarded an uptown trolley car recently and handed the conductor a quarter, which showed by its shining surface that it was fresh from the mint. The conductor in returning the change remarked, "I shall keep this for my 'slot meter.'" Curious to learn why a special coin was required for the meter, the passenger questioned the conductor and was informed that he had discovered that a new quarter dropped into the meter gives a greater supply of gas than one which has been in use, owing probably to the fact that its weight is slightly greater than that of one which has become worn through passing through many hands. This is an example of thrift as contrasted with the parsimony of the proprietor of a quarry, where a laborer was blown high into the air by the premature explosion of a blast; but, falling into a soft bed of clay and finding himself more frightened than injured, the man took up his crowbar and started to work again. On pay day he discovered to his surprise that his parsimonious employer had "docked" him for the time he was off the job in his upward flight.—Philadelphia Record.

ENGLISH WOMEN IN AN AMBULANCE CORPS.

The Ladies Mounted Ambulance Corps, that has among its members only women of birth and education, is going strong, but recruits are still wanted for it. In time of war at home or abroad the corps would be ready to offer its services for the good of the country, and meanwhile the ladies who have joined it are perfecting themselves in first aid, riding, shooting, signalling and stretcher drill.

During the first six months after enlistment the corps devotes itself entirely to first aid and nursing subjects, and the attendance at lectures and classes is compulsory. Later shooting and riding are undertaken.—Gentlewoman.

Naval Oranges 350 Years Old.

The first we know of the navel orange, which is very valuable not only on account of its fine quality and taste but also because of its being seedless, is of a single tree that was found growing on the northern shore of the Mediterranean Sea. This was about the year 1565, or nearly 350 years ago.

A monk in a monastery in that far away country painted a picture of the fruit and wrote a description of it, both of which may be seen in the library of the Roman Catholic University at Washington, D. C. Grafts of this tree were taken to Spain, and from Spain the trees were carried to South America by the Spaniards.—St. Nicholas.

RARE PLANT IN BLOOM.

Visitors to the Bronx Botanical Garden may now have the unusual experience of seeing a large species of agave in bloom. The plant is in the court of the public conservatories range 1, and forms part of the collection of American desert plants installed there during the summer. It is at present the most conspicuous object in this collection. From the surface of the ground to the apex of the brown flowering stem which has a basal diameter of about 2 1-2 inches, it is 15 feet 2 inches tall, about one-quarter of this length being occupied by the inflorescence.—From the N. Y. Botanical Garden Journal.

IMMENSE OIL SALE REPORTED

Standard Oil Said To Have Paid Five Millions For Coalinga and Kern Wells

COALINGA, Cal., Oct. 10.—A report is current here that the Standard Oil Company has purchased nine of the leading oil properties of this and the Kern River oil fields for more than $5,000,000. The price stated is greater than the sum involved in any previous oil transaction on the coast.

[illegible]

The properties said to have been transferred are the Lucile, Amy, Silver Tip, Coalinga Peerless, Kern River Peerless, Wabash, Monte Cristo and Fulton.

Several well known companies, including the Caribou and San Francisco McKittrick, are said to be concerned in the deal.

English and American Officers.

A lieutenant, writing in a London newspaper and treating of the status of officers, says that the explanation of the shortage of officers and the falling off of applications for admission to Sandhurst is found in the fact that the army as a profession "does not pay," bluntly speaking. It is not, to quote a British authority, "a prosperous profession," if the pay is compared with the investment. The writer asks in what other profession would he, a well-educated man of 32, after an expenditure of $10,000 capital and twelve years' service or experience, be expected to be contented with a "salary" of $2 a day. Answer is not easy, and apparently none is attempted beyond the vague assurance of a minister that the government hopes at some time to give the whole subject of officers' pay consideration.

The reference by this British subaltern to the expenditure of capital is enlightening as to the difference existing between the method of officering the army in his country and in ours. Not only do we pay officers a wage calculated with some reference to the expenses which the service entails, but we pay young men to go through the four years' course at West Point. In Great Britain the exactly opposite policy is followed. The cadet at Sandhurst pays for the instruction he receives.—Boston Transcript.

DANGERS OF THE STREET.

Boston school teachers are to explain to their pupils the dangers of playing in the streets. A few minutes' talk on this subject may be the means of saving many young lives. But children are not the only ones guilty of carelessness on the highways. Adults appear to take it for granted that it is safe to step from the curb without looking in either direction for cars or automobiles. The law requires motormen and chauffeurs to keep their vehicles under control, but when pedestrians step directly in front of heavy conveyances it is practically impossible to prevent accidents. A safe rule is to look up and down the street before leaving the sidewalk. Copies of the circular to teachers prepared by the Boston superintendent might be sent to the parents of the children who are to be lectured on the art of crossing crowded streets.—Providence Journal.

By a touch of President Taft's finger the Gunnison River waters have been turned through the $3,000,000 six-mile tunnel beginning at the Black Canyon, and 147,000 acres of arid "upland valley" land in the Uncompahgre plateau section of Colorado will be made to blossom as the rose. This is the largest single irrigation project ever undertaken by the Federal government.

The academic reasoner on constitutional limitatoins may argue if he will that irrigation or reclamation of arid lands is not a function imposed by the national fundamental law on the United States. No one will listen to him. There is no difference of opinion among citizens on the practical importance of such efforts, nor is there any doubt that in the case of rivers flowing from one state or territory into another the Federal government is the logical agent for such service to the general interest.—Brooklyn Eagle.

An incident which demonstrated the sagacity with which elephants are endowed, occurred at Old Meldrum, Aberdeenshire, the other day, on the occasion of a visit of a circus to the town.

At the conclusion of a children's performance, an elephant proceeded along a narrow road with a pail in its trunk for the purpose of procuring water from a pump. A little girl chanced to get in the animal's way, and the road being only wide enough to accommodate his substantial body the elephant laid down the pail, picked up the child with his trunk and gently lifted her to a place of safety, afterward resuming his journey to the pump for the water.—Westminster Gazette.

FROM "THE LAMENT OF ADAM," A SONNET SEQUENCE.

I need you near me. Speak! no, touch
my hand,
So that I may feel that it is I who ask!
Whisper some word, a "You!" Set
some task,
To bride the heav'ns! One glance—I'll understand.
Listen! the treasures of both sea and land
Are yours! (They are not men but
ghouls who bask
This day in sunlight!) Love, throw off that mask!
Answer! 'Tis I, your lover, who command.

I need you near me! Love, you who are "I,"
I need to share each breath, to hear,
each woe,
To make each joy. Love, how I need you! Give,
Ah, give some sign, some little look I know!
How cold your lips! How still you sleep to live!
I need you near me! Eve! You dare not die!
—By Richard Butler Glaenzer in the Gether Forum.

TAKE YOUR CHOICE.

The shades of night were falling fast
As through a polar village passed
A man who shouted once or twice,
The while he hustled o'er the ice:
"I found it first!"

In snow igloos he saw the light
Of blubber lamps gleam warm and bright;
Though he was frozen to the bone,
He bellowed in a gleeful tone:
"I found it first!"

"Oh, why this effervescent brag?"
A cop inquired. "Is it a jag?"
Here is the cooler; step inside."
But high and clear the voice replied:
"I found it first!"

"Oh, stay!" a maiden said, "and rest
Thy head upon this furry breast!"
A frozen tear glued shut his eye.
But still he answered: "Though I'm shy,
"I found it first!"

The man was happy as a bird;
The staring natives said: "My word!"
Who was this fellow, on the square?
Well, take your choice, they each declare:
"I found it first!"

BRIEF EDITORIAL FANCIES SELECTED

"But Keep My Name Out"

"But keep my name out of it." That is a very familiar phrase in every newspaper office and to every newspaper man. Attention is directed to it anew by the Star, of which James H. Barry is editor. He has yet not committed himself in the fight for district attorney of San Francisco, and a constant reader of E. Pluribus or somebody else wants to know why. "But keep my name out of the paper," adds this careful correspondent.

And it is always thus. "If I owned a newspaper," says Mr. Average Citizen, "I'd show them." And in the next breath this same gentleman makes protest concerning some public matter, but with the warning, "Don't use my name."

As a matter of fact if Average Citizen were in the business of running a newspaper, he would find it very much the same as his own business and he would be very careful about his course. Most newspapers are outspoken where the public interests are to be considered, but they are not fighting windmills. Neither would Average Citizen who thinks he would be a newspaper Don Quixote if he only had a medium of expression.

When the "Constant Reader" writes anonymous communications and blames his newspaper for not entering the lists against every ill, real or imaginary, he forgets that the columns are open to him, that he is at liberty to have printed what he will, over his signature, so long as it is not libelous. But when this feature is presented to him, his independence vanishes and he becomes the cautious business man looking out for Number One.—Bakersfield Californian.

Service Pensions

Not only railroad men but the public generally will be intensely interested in the announcement of the pension system which is to be put into effect next June by the Rock Island railroad sysem, with its 45,000 employes. While the old-age pension system being planned by the European governments is much to be desired rather than the indigent system that we try to make work in America, the plan of corporations pensioning those men who have served long and faithfully, as additional pay for that service, rather than a charity, has everything to commend it over all the other plans thus far worked out.

After the first of next July, men who have arrived at th eage of 66 may retire and take advantage of the pension, while at the age of 70 retirement is compulsory, with pensions for those who have been in railroad employ for 25 years or more, based on the ratio of one per cent of each year's salary earned. That is to say, a man who has worked for the railroad 25 years will retire with a pension for life equal to 25 per cent of his average salary for the 25 years. If he has labored for the company 40 years, then his pension will be 40 times one per cent of his average salary. Leave of absence, suspension, with reinstatement within one year, or a temporary lay-off on account of reduction in forces, shall not be regarded as a break in an employe's term of service.—San Bernardino Sun.

Kings County's Bad Roads

The matter of good roads still slumbers on. Everybody says we ought to have it—the present condition of the public thoroughfares is a shame and a disgrace—but no one takes the initiative in starting the good work, though it is one which every person can in the future, when the present disgraceful thoroughfares are a thing of the past, look back and congratulate themselves on. Either the chamber of commerce should take up the proposition, or an organization of men and women should be formed specially to promote the good roads movement and get the matter to vote in Kings county. This is bound to take time; in fact, if plenty of time is not taken, and the proposed general improvement of the thoroughfares put before the voters in such a way that they are familiar with it, it is doomed to defeat, as happened in Merced county, whereas if the voters are fully informed as to what is to be done—that all parts of the county must and will be treated fairly in the matter of road improvements—there can be little doubt but what a bond issue to build a good roads system throughout Kings county could be carried by a good majority.—Hanford Journal.

Vigor in College

The chancellor of the University of Nebraska has issued a manifesto against toughs as students who have more ambition to win notoriety for loud clothes and sporty demeanor than distinction for scholarship. He also takes a tilt at the "sissy" boys who indulge in cant and whose virtue is more evidence of weakness than principle. He gives students of both classes to understand that their careers at the university will be brief if they do not show more scholarship than style and more of manliness than fastidiousness. The college authorities seem to have taken freely of moral tonics to have evinced so much vigor of late.—Stockton Independent.

Women at the Taft Reception

The City of Berkeley will be entitled to distinction among the cities of California in the character of its greeting to President Taft, because three of the most distinguished citizens to be seated upon the platform at the reception at the Greek theater will be women, and two of them city officials and one a state official. The women invited to occupy places on the platform are Mrs. Phoebe A. Hearst, regent of the State University; Mrs. Elinor Carlisle, member of the Board of Education, and Miss Blanche Morse, member of the Board of Directors of the Berkeley Public Library. And Berkeley will have no more representative honorable and distinguished members on its reception committee than these three women who are serving the city and the state with so much credit.—Oakland Enquirer.

Education By Injunction

The Oaklanders just cannot stand it to be left off the map, and the Merchants Exchange, of that city, has announced that if the presses are not stopped and the State Geography corrected within seven days, an injunction is to be sued out, and the educators who prepared that same educational work are to be taught by means of hard knocks at the hands of the law that they may not slight Oakland with impunity.

Government by injunction is no novelty but as an adjunct to the spread of education, this is certainly unique. The Oaklanders really seem to be as mad about that geography as the Angelenos are about paying their taxes.—San Bernardino Sun.

Poking Fun At Cook and Peary

LONDON, Oct. 2.—The Cook-Peary controversy is beginning to grow much less prominent. To the end of last week Peary no doubt had things pretty much all his own way here and Cook's friends were few and far between; but already the style and tone of Peary's telegrams were causing a feeling of reaction, which has grown steadily ever since.

Cook's reticence, which at first was counted strongly against him, is now generally considered preferable to Peary's vituperation. With this feeling to aid it, opinion seems to be growing that there is little to pick between the two stories. The idea now coming to the front is that it may be well to suspend final judgment until the two protagonists have given their complete data to the world.

Meanwhile the Britisher is extracting what fun he can from the whole affair. He would not be sorry if the verdict of the scientists were eventually to throw both men over. He would then feel himself justified of his first belief in Cook and his present disapproval of Peary. There are plenty who are beginning to think that both explorers have made a mistake in claiming to have found the pole, and one of the most frequent remarks heard where men are gathered together is:

"Thank God that neither of them is an Englishman."

An evening paper prints a communication from the "president of the Royal Eskimo Academy of Sciences," claiming the honor of the discovery of the north pole for Ahwelsh and E-dun-a-bunk (a synonym of Etukishook), but admitting they were assisted by Commander Peary and Dr. Cook, and then drops into this parody of a well known piece of verse:

Ah-gumdrop-welsh and E-dun-a-bunk were very great men, particular!
They used to climb up very steep
bergs, exceedingly steep, perpendicular!
The bergs that they climbed were innumerable bergs, exceedingly so, multitudinous!
And every berg was a very high berg,
exceedingly high, altitudinous!
And those very high bergs, those very steep bergs (which makes the thing more inexpressible),
Those uncountable bergs, those impossible bergs, were every one inaccessible!

During the last week hundreds of school children in London and the provinces have listened with eager delight to the story of the discovery and have written essays on the subject. Here are a few examples:

"There is now a lot of talk about the discovery of the north pole," begins a girl of 10. "Dr. Cook was supposed to have reached it, but when he got there Capt. Peary came up over the side and told Mr. Cook the pole belonged to him. They both became very angry, and waved the Stars and Stripes, but presently agreed to leave it in the hands of the President of America."

Says another: "A lot of people have been trying to find the north pole, but when they got there they died, and their bones were found by Dr. Cook and Capt. Peary. The reason why Dr. Cook and Capt. Peary did not die was because they were Americans."

Again another essayist affirms that Capt. Peary reached the north pole on a Dreadnought. He adds: "The reason why he went by sea was because it was cheaper than going by train. The discovery of the north pole is a good thing, because it is the end of the world."

The Jewish World, after referring with pride to Dr. Cook's Jewish origin, says that the north pole is the only place on earth, except the other pole, where it is impossible for Jews to settle. Why? The Jew is commanded to turn his face to the east when he prays. How can he do it where there is no east?

Then how can he say morning prayers every day when the polar night lasts six months? It would mean morning prayer once a year. Then what about the Omar? How can he count forty-nine evenings in the seven weeks between the second day of Passover and Pentecost when there is only one long evening in the whole of the polar year? He would not know when the Sabbath was in or out.

"Suppose," the Jewish World concludes, "the long polar night began with a Sabbath evening. We should not be able to do work for months. Suppose the long polar day began on a fast. How would you like a Yom Kippur or a Tishi B'Ab six months long?"

The controversy has made its way even into such severe and dry as dust publications as the official Stock Exchange bullion circulars. Of silver it was said the other day: "Manipulated as the market undoubtedly is in the interests of Indian speculators, the true position of affairs is as difficult to analyze as some details of recent polar exploration."

An establishment the name of which is a household word in England presents a spectacular piece, "The North Pole, a Tropical Illusion." The Parisians have a lighter touch. A revue is in course of preparation there at one of the most popular operetta theatres under the punning title of "Un Coup d'Epaule." The stars here are to be Mlle. Polaire and M. Polin.

Parisians of course turn everything into fun, and so it is not surprising to find that a game called "Discovering the North Pole" is the feature of the present annual Paris toy show. This particular toy shows the top of the earth painted white, with an explorer on either side of the pole, one dressed in white bearskin and the other in black bearskin. They have the names Peary and Cook painted on them. The explorers each hold a large flag the staff of which has to sink into a socket representing the north pole. By turning a handle behind the figures the flagstaffs move up and down until one of the two figures has succeeded in fixing the staff into the socket.

The Germans are severely practical as ever. The name of "Dr. Cook brandy" has been given to a home distilled product which in accordance with the new law may not be described as "cognac brandy."

Apropos of the controversy the Manchester Guardian recalls the great dispute between Burton and Speke about the discovery of the sources of the Nile. Speke virtually discovered the source in Lake Victoria Nyanza in his 1857-59 expedition. He had gone on to the lake alone, leaving Burton behind, sick. Few people believed Speke, and Burton was not one of them.

In 1863 Speke, accompanied by Grant, discovered the source beyond dispute, but still Burton denied the possibility. Then it was arranged that Speke and Burton should hold a public disputation on the subject before the British Association at Bath in 1864. On the morning of the meeting Speke was found dead in a fence, with a gun lying beside him.

"Today," the Law Journal muses, "it is the scientists who are busy; tomorrow the lawyers will begin; for law follows the explorer like his shadow into each new region which he occupies, and dispenses its rights, its duties and its privileges.

"The territorial sovereignty, for whatever it is worth, belongs presumably in this case to the United States. The claim suggested for Denmark on the ground that the pole is part of Greenland can hardly be maintained, since Peary has proved Greenland to be an island. Any pretensions by the British Crown in right of Canada, as to which Sir Gilbert Parker questioned the Prime Minister, are as unsubstantial. They would belong if set up to the same category of claims as that of the Spaniards to engross the whole of America south of the Gulf of Mexico, or that of the King of France to monopolize the valleys of the Ohio and the Mississippi.

"But there is what lawyers would call a preliminary objection, which goes to the root of the matter. Can there be any question of territorial sovereignty if the only territory is an open polar sea? Cook sank his cylinder with the Stars and Stripes in it on an icefloe, and Peary seems to have painted his flag on the same precarious and shifting foundation; and the sea, it has long been settled, cannot become the exclusive property of any nation.

"But if as a technical matter of international law the United States cannot claim the sovereignty of the pole that disability cannot derogate from the honor which belongs and must always belong to them of achieving the conquest of this long coveted crown of the earth."

YELLOW PERIL IN SOUTH.

Lax Defense Against Dreaded Fever Scourge at Ports.

A considerable row was kicked up in this country several months ago, when it looked as if Cuba again would become a yellow fever pesthole, because of the native government's refusal to vote enough money to carry on preventive measures. What hope was there for a people who hadn't gumption enough to keep themselves well, after our army surgeons had shown them how, we asked. And there was excuse for considerable irritation in the circumstances.

That danger is now happily passed, however. The necessary funds have apparently been set aside, and for the next year at least we are in little peril of infection from Cuban sources. Indeed, it appears from an address at the recent Budapest medical congress by Dr. A. Agramonte, professor of bacteriology in the University of Havana, that the boot belongs on the other leg—that Cuba is in more danger of infection from us than we are from her. He said:

"I cannot refrain from calling the attention of my hearers to the superiority of our organization when compared with that of our neighboring countries, including Mexico and the United States. The latter, and more especially the states bordering on the Gulf of Mexico, depend almost exclusively upon quarantine measures to prevent the introduction of yellow fever; their towns are overrun by stegomyia mosquitoes; the city of New Orleans, in Louisiana, which depends for its water supply upon the use of cisterns in every house, has failed to keep them all properly covered, and mosquitoes are today nearly as plentiful as before the dreadful epidemic of 1905. The nonimmune population is widely disseminated and in the hands of private practitioners, who will fail to recognize the first cases, or will hide them, as they did in the memorable summer of 1905. The same may be said of the other Southern states whose bugbear is yellow fever, and whose protective panacea is quarantine, the least useful measure which may be implanted in any country for its defense against said infection."—New York Times.

ALL DISEASE HAS A MENTAL ORIGIN

Erroneous References To Christian Science Corrected

It Is Healing Authentic Organic As Well As Functional Diseases

Editor Fresno Republican: In your issue of October 5th, Rev. Albert W. Palmer makes erroneous references to Christian Science, which call for correction.

To begin with, Mr. Palmer thinks that Christian Science is unscientific, but those who understand Christian Science sufficiently to heal the sick and reform the sinner know that it is pre-eminently scientific. Its foundation is Christ, and it deals with God and the application of His laws and is therefore an exact science.

Our critic's remarks concerning sanitation, quarantine, and preventive measures against disease show him to be unacquainted with the teachings of Christian Science on these points. The Christian Scientist through the spiritual quickening that has come to him through the teachings of Christian Science has a greater appreciation for unselfishness and regard for his neighbor's welfare and cheerfully complies with all laws and regulations concerning sanitation. In cases of contagious diseases he instantly reports to the proper officials. In other words, Christian Science in healing the individual spiritually and physically also makes him a better citizen and neighbor.

Mr. Palmer thinks that organic disease does not yield to mental treatment. In this he is mistaken as there is plenty of evidence that it does. In the June number of the Arena, the editor, Mr. B. O. Flower has a most thorough article entitled "Medical Explanations of Christian Science." This article contains detailed accounts of authentic cases of healing of organic diseases. These cases are accompanied by diagnosis of physicians of eminent ability, names and addresses being given. In fact every aid is extended to those who desire to be convinced that Christian Science is constantly healing organic diseases as well as functional and in many cases after they have been pronounced hopeless by the attending physicians.

In regard to diagnosis it may be said that Christian Science makes the most scientific diagnosis. It has proven that all disease has a mental origin no matter how remote, and with its knowledge of mental analysis it is competent to make accurate and thorough diagnosis. This accounts for many cures after other methods have failed. Statistics show that Christian Science is the most successful healing agency on the globe, and why not. No Christian could expect less of the kingdom of Jesus. He and his disciples cured all those who came and did not ask if their disease were functional or organic.

"The Master said to all in every age, 'He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also.' That this promise was not intended for the disciples only is shown by his instructions to the disciples who were commanded, 'Go ye therefore and teach all nations' * * * teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you.'—Matt. 28:19-20.

Christian Science is not a new belief. It is the religion of the Bible. It teaches and proves that the Christian religion has lost none of its efficacy in redeeming mankind from the bondage of the flesh. Christian Scientists reiterate the words of the Psalmist, "Bless the Lord, O my soul and forget not all his benefits. Who forgiveth all thine iniquities, Who healeth all thy diseases." Sincerely yours,

WILLIAM E. BROWN.

SHAKESPEARE ON TWO NIGHTS

King Lear Will Be Given At Barton As An Elaborate Scenic Production

An attraction of unusual importance to the play-goers of this city will be the appearance of Millidge Sherwood in an elaborate scenic production of "King Lear," at the Barton tomorrow and Wednesday nights.

The tragedy of "King Lear" is celebrated among the dramas of Shakespeare. There is, perhaps, no play which keeps the attention so strongly fixed, which so much agitates the passions and interests the curiosity. The striking opposition of contrary characters the sudden change of fortune, and the quick succession of events, fill the mind with a perpetual tumult of indignation, pity and hope.

There is no scene which does not contribute to the aggravation of the distress or conduct of the action, and hardly a line which does not contribute to the progress of the scene. So powerful, is the current of the poet's imagination, that the mind which once ventures within it is hurried irresistibly along. The story itself, in its broad outlines of doting paternal kindness repaid with filial ingratitude, and paternal harshness requited with devoted love, is as old as almost any story in English literature.

Mr. Sherwood will be supported by an excellent company of players, who have had experience in the Shakesperean and classic drama. The production will be the most complete ever presented, particular attention having been paid to the storm scene.

MAN IS ATTACKED AND CUT BY THUGS

Receives Two Bad Gashes on Neck; Is Taken To County Hospital

While walking along I street just south of the Hughes hotel last night, Jack Stringefellow, a laborer, was attacked by thugs, robbed and severely cut on the back with a knife. The injured man wandered to the corner of I and Mariposa, where he was picked up by officers and brought to the emergency hospital. Dr. Floyd Burke was called and dressed the man's wounds, after which he was removed to the county hospital.

Stringefellow had a deep gash on the left side of his neck and one on the back of his neck. Neither will prove fatal.

Some unknown man reported to the police at the Southern Pacific depot early last evening that he had been robbed of $150 while on his way to the depot from the Oriental quarter.

TWEN TY-TWO-YEAR-OLD BOY IS LOST

John Milliken, a 22-year-old "boy," caused his parents much distraction yesterday when he suddenly disappeared from sight during the celebration attending the visit of President Taft to this city, and last night two of the friends of the "boy" reported his disappearance to the police.

When the two men who reported the loss first told of Milliken, they continually referred to him as a small boy, and finally Officer Knight asked them how old he was. He was informed that he was only 22 years of age.

A note was made of the case, but the police thought the "boy" well able to take care of himself, and it is presumed that he will be able to find his way home.

UNITARIANISM IS NOT A MODERN FAD

It First Struck Root in Rich Soil of Judaism

It Appeals To Thinkers, and Seeks To Leaven Religious Thought

The third Sunday evening lecture in the series under the auspices of the reorganized First Unitarian church was delivered last evening at the Parlor Lecture Club hall. The hearty and spirited singing by the congregation was one feature of the service. Last evening Mrs. Croxon and Mr. George Babcock sang McCabe's "O Salutaris" as the offertory.

Dr. Crutzan chose for his text "We desire to hear of thee what thou thinkest, for as concerning this sect we know that it is everywhere spoken against." He spoke in substance as follows:

We Unitarians certainly resemble the first century christians in one respect—we are "everywhere spoken against." Much of this opposition arises from ignorance of our views, and from prejudice. An increasing number of people, unable longer to accept the old beliefs, turn to us and say with the text, "We desire to hear what thou thinkest." To such truth seekers answer is made gladly and to such the speaker addressed himself on "Unitarianism—From Whence It Came and For What It Stands."

There is a common impression that Unitarianism is a modern fad invented by William Ellery Channing, early in the last century, said the speaker. That is exactly untrue. Unitarianism is not new, but very old. It first struck root in the rich soil of Judaism. It joins with the Jew in the age long truth, "Hear, O Israel! The Lord our God is One." We belong to the early Christian church. Jesus was the first Unitarian in the Christian era. What he taught, that we stand for.

During the first two centuries the Christian church was Unitarian. The word "trinity" is not in the Bible; it did not come into the vocabulary of the church until the close of the second century. The Council of Nice, in 325, A. D., branded Unitarianism a heresy, and all the power of the Roman empire and the church joined to crush it out.

Unitarianism sprang into new life with Luther's reformation. It took organized form again in 1658, in Transylvania, under the leadership of Francis David, bishop of Kolozsvar. Six years before David's work on the continent John Biddle formed a Unitarian society in London. In 1791, Rev. Joseph Priestly, a clergyman of the established church, a famous chemist who discovered oxygen, was mobbed for Unitarian heresy, driven from England, became to America, and in 1794 organized a Unitarian church in Philadelphia. But nine years before this King's chapel in Boston, the first Episcopal church in New England, became Unitarian.

The Congregational churches planted during the early settlement of New England had no creeds; they united on simple covenants. During the last quarter of the eighteenth century there was a growing revolt against the awful hyper-Calvinism which was taught in these churches. When Channing led the way early in the nineteenth century, more than a hundred of these creedless churches became Unitarian, among them the Forefathers' church of Plymouth, the First and Second churches of Boston, and the churches in Lynn, Salem, Newburyport, Cambridge, etc.

Unitarianism has never sought to gather great numbers. It has sought to leaven religious thought. It makes its appeal to thinkers and has won "a goodly company." To mention only a few illustrious names: On the continent, Mazzini of Italy, Kossuth of Hungary, Castelar of Spain, were Unitarians. In England, Milton, Locke, Sir Isaac Newton, Herbert Spencer, Charles Darwin, Landsier, Dickens, George Eliot, the Brownings and Mrs. Ward, were of our faith. In America among the founders of the republic, the Adames (Samuel, John and John Quincy), Franklin, Jefferson and Hancock were Unitarians. The great poets and historians, Emerson, Longfellow, Bryant, Holmes, Stoadman and Markham, and Bancroft; Motley, Prescott, Parkman, Sparks and Fiske accepted our faith. Great educators like Horace Mann, Elizabeth Peabody, Eliot Gilman, James and Jordan are Unitarians. Among statesmen, Webster, Calhoun, the Hoars, Sumner, Curtis, Lodge, Long and Taft; among jurists, Marshall, Parsons, Story and Miller; among literary men, Hawthorne, Bayard Taylor, George William Curtis, Howells and Edward Everett Hale; and among eminent women, Margaret Fuller, Lydia Maria Child, Lucretia Mott, Helen Hunt Jackson, Mrs. Livermore, Mrs. Stanton, Susan B. Anthony and Julia Ward Howe were Unitarians. I mention these few names of representative Americans to show the type of men and women to whom our free liberal gospel appeals.

Unitarianism appeals to thinking men and women because of that for which it stands. Unitarians have no authoritative creed which is made the test of loyalty. In a sermon preached last week in Fresno it was stated that Unitarianism did a needed negative work, years ago. Yes, but that negative work was done and well done by our fathers. Today we hold and preach a sane, positive, beautiful gospel. Let me give the main points in our Unitarian faith.

We believe in man—that he is a rising not a fallen being; that he started in a jungle, not a garden, as an imperfect animal, not a perfect man; that slowly, painfully he has won manhood. We believe that man is still in the making, that we are sons of God going on to perfection.

We believe in God, not in an egotistical being who created all things for his own glory, not in a partial God who cares only for a "chosen people," or for the elect; but in a God who is in His world, present in all things, back of all law, life, force. We believe that this divine power is ever working for a better civilization and for a larger manhood.

We believe in Jesus, the man, born as we are born, living as we may live, and dying as we shall die. In Jesus we find not a God condescending to humanity, but humanity rising up to God; not a God to worship, but an example to follow.

We believe in revelation, age-long and world-wide. God did not reveal his will only to the Jews during a few hundred years and then become dumb. Revelation is progressive, to all men, through all time. I used to think Christianity was the one true religion, and that all others were false. There are no false religions. God is in every religion, however low and crude it may be, and striving to lead those who use it out into a larger truth and purer manhood. In Judaism and Christianity I believe we have a fuller, clearer revelation of God than in any other religion, but revelation is not confined to these; it is as universal as man's need.

We Unitarians replace the old despair with a large glorious hope. God will not fail. Some time, somewhere he will bring all men to the fullness of manhood revealed in Jesus. Man is a son of God. He is not fallen, but rising. He has risen, struggled out from animalism to savagery, from savagery to barbarism, from barbarism to our crude civilization. He is going on to perfection. Mighty forces are working to this end. Nothing can stay or thwart them. God will not be defeated. As Whittier wrote "The World is Grey With Morning Light":

"But life shall on and upward go;
The eternal steps of progress beats
To the great anthem calm and slow
Which God repeats.

"God works in all things; all obey
His first propulsion from the night;
Wake thou and watch! the world is grey
With morning light."

JONES' LUCKY BUY AT THE JUNK SALE

Inventory of Canvas Roll Showed Some Surprises

Not the Least of Which Was a Diamond Ring Easily Worth $50

At the annual clean up of uncalled-for packages auctioned off by the Wells Fargo Express Company last Saturday some bought electric belts for which they paid as high as $10, and for which they can have no earthly use, while others secured veritable bargains.

Take, for instance, J. W. Jones, of the People's Transfer Company. He had his eye all day on a roll of canvas, thinking it would be a cheap buy to take advange of, inasmuch as he would need all the canvas he could lay hands on to protect his hack and express horses during the winter months. A roll of canvas was put up for sale, and Jones bid it in for $3.00, and it was sold to him. In the deal Jones secured $14.00 worth of canvas, to say nothing of what was in the canvas. The following articles were the contents of the canvas roll as shown by the inventory:

One suit case valued at $3.00.

Contents of suit case: One razor strop valued at $1.50; 1 shaving mug, loaded with soap, valued at $1.00; 1 silver-handled shaving brush valued at $1.00, 1 small diamond ring, large enough to buy 50 bales of hay; two suits of clothes and two suits of underwear of winter weight, heavy enough to discover the north pole; one pair of long boots which must have cost the original owner $10, and a heavy bearskin laprobe big enough to cover three people, also sausage grinder, pair sealskin ear muffs, pair hair clippers, set of waffle irons, a large sponge and a set of cuff buttons made from 10-cent pieces.

The conjecture is that the canvas roll belonged to a homeward bound Klondike or Alaskan miner whose outfit was misdirected or mis-sent and turned up here unclaimed.

BAKERSFIELD WINS THREE STRAIGHT FROM VISALIA

Yesterday's Double-header Taken by Drillers, Due to Heaving of Traeger and Thorsen --Maire in Both Games

(Special to the Republican.)

BAKERSFIELD, Oct. 10.—Bakersfield made it three straight from Visalia this afternoon, 2 to 0 being the score. Fifteen hundred people witnessed the game, which was played in 79 minutes. Maire pitched a splendid game except in the sixth when he weakened and was hit for a double and two singles which coupled with Garibaldi's overthrow to home resulted in two runs. Elmer Thorsen pitched a fine game keeping the Pirate's seven hits well scattered. Features of the game were the playing of Coltrin, Eagle and Garrity. Bakersfield has now won 8 out of 13 games from Visalia this year. The score:

Visalia	0	7	1
Bakersfield	2	4	1

Batteries: Maire and Dashwood; Thorsen and Easterly. Umpire Burleigh of Fresno.

MORNING GAME

Bakersfield batted Maire at opportune times this morning and won hands down, 3 to 1. Traeger was wild but had good support and was effective at critical stages. Features of the game were Hernards' fielding and Galbraith's battery. Visalia had men on bases frequently but was unable to score after the second frame. Batt put up a good game at first. The score:

	R.	H.	E.
Visalia	1	5	3
Bakersfield	3	6	2

Batteries: Maire and Dashwood; Traeger and Easterly.

CLASS OF BALL NOT WORTH COST TO FANS

"Here lies the remains of an Outlaw Bunch
That now sadly regrets a costly bunch."

The foregoing in bold, black letters, would be an appropriate epithet to inscribe on the tombstone of the defunct California State League of 1909. But by all means, bury the remnants of outlawry very deep and see to it that the sunflowers over it are kept green. It might not be a bad idea for the fans to equip themselves with an array of cannons, gatling guns and big sticks and go in search of the villain who gave the State Leaguers their bunch last spring that it would be sago-pudding to put the rollers under the Coast League and organized ball in general.

"The nerve of some people's children." Think of it. Cities the size of Fresno, Stockton, San Jose and Santa Cruz and a rotten ball town like Oakland, with two clubs in Sacramento, trying to give the fans major league ball, with big brush salaries and a Class C gate. Is it any wonder that the fans were appealed to at every bend of the road? It was not the fault of the managers and players. But who had the nerve to give us the hunch that the State League could put a crimp in organized ball?

The salaries paid were altogether out of proportion to the attendance and the size of the cities. True, the fans saw good ball, but think of the price they paid. It was velvet for the players, but curtains for the directors and fans.

Now that the State League has accepted terms, it will be as well to point out one mistake that was made by the organization and proved extremely costly. It was the habit, practiced all through the year, of exchanging players. Occasionally, as when a player is in bad with the fans of his home city, it is well to make a trade. But promiscuous trading as if the league was all one big family, will not be tolerated by the fans. They must have their reason for being patriotic to the home club, and it doesn't come about when players are sent here and there.

The greatest drawback of the outlaws, however, was the utter inability of the clubs to control their players. The latter knew full well that the league was in need of their services and they did about as they pleased. The fans do not care for rowdy baseball. They want the men to show plenty of snap, but not to delay a game by disorderly tactics.

And under organized baseball this will not be permitted in 1910. The umpires will have full authority and any player disobeying will be punished to the extent necessary.

The agreement between Frank Herman and Cal Ewing is similar in almost every detail to the one the late Harry C. Pulliam on behalf of the National Commission offered the State League at the beginning of the season. The outlaw magnates laughed at the man from organized ball camp.

They wanted fight and they got it. The price they paid should not be forgotten, and the fans should also remember the joke organization that existed during the last six weeks of its existence. The schedule was changed from series to series to suit the man behind the throne. Every fan knows who he is. We saw big leaguers play, we viewed some good ball and some rotten exhibitions and best of all we paid every cent it was worth. And don't forget that we were fortunate to see such ball. The State League is back in the fold and the fight has been given up. We may not see big leaguers in action in the future, but it will cost us less to see players in action that will work hard to go higher up the ladder, and deep down in our hearts we know that we're lucky to get Class B ball. The cities around the circuit are not entitled to anything better than Class C.

The following is the way the Stockton Independent sizes up the tale of woe:

While undoubtedly a few of the fans will want outlaw ball they will find that the article they receive will prove far better than the mixed conditions the past six weeks have furnished. The teams will be better balanced and the rivalry more intense than it has been of late. It is true of course, that the cities in which the outlaws played enjoyed unusually good ball the first of the season, but the expense was too great.

A Class B league can furnish good ball, the expenses can be greatly reduced and the players disciplined. They cannot forever hold that old jumping threat over the heads of the managers. Hereafter they will play with the teams they sign with unless sold, traded or released, or not at all. This season players have been drawing more money than they were ever paid since they commenced wielding the willow. Now they will get good wages, but not the fancy kind.

LUCKY TO GET CLASS B.

To those who have not made a study of the classifications of ball teams under the national agreement, it might be well to state that the State League was very fortunate in getting a Class B rating. Throughout the East population is taken into consideration in assigning the class to a league and it requires over 100,000 people for cities to get into the Class B section. Had this been enforced out here it would have been impossible to get the rating granted.

While it has not been announced it is understood that the agreement between Presidents Ewing and Hermann contains several concessions about players and other matters that will help the new league next season. All of the players with each team in the State League remain the property of the particular club they were playing with at the close of the season. All of them will, of course, be placed on the reserve list as usual and play next year after coming to terms with the management. It will also be a six-team league and games will be played in San Francisco regularly.

BIG BRUSH TO PLAY HERE.

The signing of the agreement will also permit the teams from the East to play in Stockton, Sacramento and Fresno this winter. The teams that will come to the coast to train will also be seen on the State League grounds next year. In all probability two or three games will be played, the home nine being pitted against the Philadelphia club. This will be a grand chance to get some line on the home tossers and just how fast they really work.

While the State League has lost considerable money the past season the Coast League has not cleared what it would have had there been no State organization. The San Francisco team is the only one to really make money and that was due to returning a pennant winner more than anything else. Had that club been three or four in the list the Coasters would not have laid up any coin.

This is the sane, intelligent and unbiased manner in which the baseball scribe on the Sacramento Bee sizes up the situation:

One of the strongest influences that entrance of the outlaws into organized baseball will have will be on the salary rolls of both the Coast and State League. The big, juicy plums the outlaws have been plucking in the State League will not be ripe next year. The ridiculous wages being drawn by several of the State League stars will be led to the chopping block and be hacked to pieces with the casting aside of the coat of outlawry. The rules have placed the salary limit for Class B teams at $1800 a month. Carrying at least twelve players, as the clubs will be forced to do next year, it is hard to figure out where few, if any, of the players are to get over $200 a month. That salary will be the limit for the stars and a club on a $1800 roll cannot carry many $200 stars.

The salary roll of Coast League clubs, particularly that of Sacramento, will undergo a similar operation with the State League under organized cover. Without doubt the Sacramento team at the present time is the highest salaried team in the league. The roll totals over $4000 a month. The players are drawing war salaries. The Sacramento club went into the ranks of the outlaws and grabbed players such as Spider Baum, House, Gandil Meyers, Fitzgerald and Heister, and paid money for them. If they did not pay the money their chances of getting the players would have been slim. Sacramento was in the midst of the war with the outlaws and had to put the players on a salary that would insure their remaining.

PLAYERS MUST AGREE TO SLICING.

Next year there will be a very different aspect to affairs. Salaries will be cut down to a figure where all the clubs will be able to make both ends meet at the end of the season. The players will have to submit to the reductions or quit the game. They cannot threaten to play outlaw baseball because the passage of the State League into organized ball will remove this avenue of escape.

The baseball players naturally do not welcome the demise of the State League next year, for it has afforded many a bed of clover. It has been a dark cloud on the horizon for the Coast League, but it has furnished a silver lining for the players.

Oaks Win the Other, But Stockton Enters a Protest

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 10.—Stockton and Oakland split even here today in two games, the second of which was marked by even work of both teams while the first was protested by Stockton in the sixth inning when Umpire Hildebrand called a balk on Stockton's pitcher, Hoag. The visitors asserted that Hoag was not in the box and therefore no balk was possible. Scores:

FIRST GAME

	R.	H.	E.
Stockton	1	4	2
Oakland	3	9	0

Batteries: Hoag and Le Brand; Henderson and Hackett.

SECOND GAME

Oakland	4	8	1

Batteries: Trippett and Le Brand; Bloomfield, Moskiman and Hackett.

Rain May Postpone Opening Game At Detroit

Fans Are Worked To a High Point of Enthusiasm Over Series

DETROIT, Oct. 10.—The chances of playing the third game of the world's championship series between Pittsburg and Detroit here tomorrow are extremely dubious because of a heavy rain that fell here today. According to the local forecaster, the rain will continue steadily all night and possibly all day tomorrow.

Should the third game not be played tomorrow the Detroit games will go over until Tuesday and Wednesday and the next game at Pittsburg will be delayed until Thursday.

The Pittsburg and Detroit teams arrived here today on the National Commission's special train. The Pittsburg headquarters were established at the Pont Chartrain hotel.

If there is a game tomorrow the Detroit choice of pitchers will probably lie between Mullen and Summers. Manager Clarke intimated that his pitcher tomorrow would be either Adams or Maddox.

The return of the two teams, each with a victory to its credit, has aroused the interest to fever height. Predictions are being made freely that the crowd at the first game here will beat all records for a world's series in this city.

The National Commission will hold a meeting here tomorrow and it is expected that action will be taken on the Murphy-Pfeiffer case.

Seals Win Two Games From Crippled Angels

Mohler's Men Take Series From Southerners—Durham Gathers

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 10.—San Francisco took the double-header from Los Angeles today, shutting out the home team in the morning, 6 to 0, and winning in the afternoon by a score of 7 to 5.

Mohler was the hitting star of the Seals. He got two of the ten hits San Francisco made on Hatch, one of them a home run, the other a two-bagger. Scores:

AMATEUR BASEBALL

With Kid Brant on the firing line, the Parlier team downed the Reedley aggregation yesterday afternoon at Parlier, 3 to 1. Ray Duncan, of the Brunswicks, who held down first for the Parlier bunch, was the hitting fiend, getting two bingles out of three trips to the rubber. Dorando Puccini held down third for Parlier. DeWitt was in the box for Reedley.

Buck Francks is holding down short for the Stockton club in the post-season series with Cy Moreing's Oaks.

The Madera Coyotes and the rejuvenated Brunswicks will try conclusions at Recreation Park next Sunday.

The Perrin Colony team received a drubbing from the Fresno Eagles, a local team, yesterday noon on the Eagles' grounds. The score was 15 to 9. C. Schehl and C. Bopp were in the points for the winners, while Dan Berg and George Lunn formed the battery for the Perrins. The contest developed into a slugfest, the Eagles getting 18 safeties off Berg, the Perrins gleaning 10 bingles from Schehl's delivery.

The Pirates annexed an exciting ten-inning game from the Fresno Stars Saturday afternoon. The score was 10 to 9. The Pirates have now won two out of three. A return meeting is scheduled for next Tuesday on the Pirates' grounds.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 10. Oakland had a good batting day today and captured both games from Vernon. The morning contest resulted in a 11 to 5 victory for the home team and the afternoon struggle went the same way, 4 to 2. In the morning game Vernon's work was remarkable for misplays, nine errors being charged to the Southerners. In the afternoon Oakland hammered Vance for nine safe hits, while Tonneson held the visitors to five. Scores:

Back To the Bushes For Ed Kennedy, Ex-Tiger

The San Francisco Chronicle has the following about "Big Ed" Kennedy, former first baseman of the Fresno Tigers:

Walter McCredie has released Ed Kennedy, his first baseman. Kennedy was with the Seals the first part of the season, but later transferred to the Northwest Portland club.

The Beavers are not overlooking a chance to cop that pennant. As the Northwest season is over, McCredie is using the best men from his Northwest club.

According to a recent copy of the Sporting News, Howard Murphy, the Oakland outfielder, who was sold to the St. Louis Nationals, was an absolute failure, and it is stated that he will not be taken with the club on its spring training trip next year.

FRENCH PUGS ARE COMING TO AMERICA

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—Following the successful invasion of Paris by American pugilists, two French fighters who have been schooling in the American methods have arrived here in quest of fortune.

One of them, Henri Piest, was discovered by Frank Erne in his school in Paris and was so well trained that he whipped every lightweight with the exception of Freddie Welsh, and it is said that for eleven rounds he had an even show with the phenomenal English lightweight, until he strained a leg and was compelled to retire, Welsh securing the decision. The other fighter is Charles Adolphe, who is not as well known as his companion, but who is rated as a good man.

As the fighting game is at a standstill in this city the two Frenchmen will seek engagements in Western cities.

HAS KETCHEL A CHANCE WITH JACK JOHNSON?

Fight-Fans Are Debating This Question—Even Money That Stanley Will Last Fifteen Rounds With the Negro

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 10. — Even money that Stanley Ketchel, middleweight champion of the world, will last 15 rounds; 2 to 1 that Jack Johnson, the big negro heavyweight champion, will retain his title after October 16, when the two men will engage in a 20-round battle at Colma arena, were the prevailing odds among the fight fans today.

Despite the fact that Ketchel is training for his first contest in the heavyweight class, the Michigan pugilist has a large following in this city. There seems to be any amount of the 15-round money and considerable is being wagered that Ketchel will get the decision.

In the presence of several newspaper men yesterday, Ketchel tipped the scales at his training quarters at 174 pounds, the most he has ever weighed in training. According to his manager, Willis Britt, he will enter the ring at 3 o'clock weighing not less than 178. As Johnson plans to fight at 196 pounds there will be a difference of 18 pounds.

If Britt's prediction is verified Ketchel will be heavier than many men who have contended for heavyweight honors. Jim Corbett averaged 176 pounds in his battles and a few days before Fitzsimmons knocked out Corbett he tipped the beam at 156. Tom Sharkey averaged 175 to 176 pounds for his battles and Joe Choinski never equaled the Michigan man's present weight.

Both contenders are training hard for the contest. The negro, having exhausted his supply of sparring timber, has announced that he will meet all comers until he stops training. Ketchel is doing much strenuous work on the road, punching the bag, wrestling the sand bag, going through his own system of calisthenics regularly and keeping several sparring mates busy.

Seldom has more interest been taken in a championship battle than the local sporting public is showing in the coming contest.

Besides the championship which Ketchel claims is the prize he cares most about and is determined to win, considerable money will go to the winner. A side bet of $5000 has been posted with the sporting editor of a local paper. Of the purse, 60 per cent of the gross receipts, the winner will take 65 per cent and the loser 35 per cent. Jack Welch will referee the contest.

Tigers Beat Modesto Reds, 4-3, In Good Game

Schimpff Holds Lesherites Safe Throughout—Cates Hit Opportunely

Just to show that it could be accomplished the Fresno Tigers slipped a crusher on the Modesto Reds in the northern town yesterday, 4 to 3, in a splendid exhibition of the national pastime. Last Sunday, the Reds, with the veteran Eli Cates in the box, held the locals to no runs for thirteen innings. Modesto also failed to score and it required a return game to decide the tie.

Yesterday Billy McDonough journeyed to the home of the formidable Reds with a crippled lineup, in the absence of Bill Kelley. Carney was brought in from right garden and stationed on second. Cuyler Leonard chased the high ones in right. Oscar Jones was in left with Walt Kuhn on short. Artie Schimpff did the hurling down the alley and he simply toyed with the Reds for the first six frames. Then he settled down and struck out five in the last three rounds.

Eli Cates was again on the mound and he essayed to hold the Tigers safe as on the previous meeting. But McDonough's men went right after him from the start and two runs were chalked up in the first stanza. After the locals had made four runs, they quit trying to circle the bags. The Reds were presented with three for good measure.

Schimpff fanned seven of the Reds, while Cates forced three to whiff the air. Schimpff formerly played with the Reds and he made such a splendid showing yesterday that his services for second bag were engaged for next Sunday against the Maxwells of San Francisco.

FIVE NEW WORLD'S RECORDS HUNG OUT

NEW YORK, Oct. 10. Five new world's records and one American record were made at Celtic park today during the annual fall track and field games of the Irish-American Athletic club.

Emilio Lunghi, the Italian champion, who ran unattached, made a new record in the two thirds mile scratch race, which he won in 2:45 3-5. The old record was 2:48 1-5.

In the discus throw Martin J. Sheridan sent the saucer skimming 142 feet 10½ inches, beating his former record of 140 feet 7 inches. He also wiped out J. S. Mitchell's American figures of 26 feet 8½ inches by putting the 42 pound stone, from a stand with follow, 27 feet 3 inches.

John J. Flanagan, throwing the 16 pound hammer, with unlimited run, and follow, sent the missile 180 feet 1 inch. The old figures were 154 feet 1½ inches.

The Irish-American Athletic club team, composed of Collins, Riley, Bromilow and Kiviat, won the four mile relay handicap race from scratch in 18:08 4-5, clipping 1 1-5 seconds off the world's record held by the University of Michigan.

S. C. Northridge and C. S. P. Cassass of the same club, won the three legged scratch race at 220 yards in 27 1-5 seconds, easily beating Zust and Puffers, world's record of thirty-three seconds.

Date of the Munkers-Rysn Match Is Changed

Middleweight Wrestlers To Clash at Madera Wednesday Evening

Tony Munkers of Kansas City, champion middleweight wrestler of the Pacific coast, who is matched with Freddies Ryon of Chicago, was in Fresno yesterday from Madera, where the coming bout will be held. Munkers stated that the date for the match has been changed from Tuesday of this week to the following evening, October 13, at 8 o'clock. Athletic hall in Madera will be the scene of the exhibition.

The articles call for 158 pounds at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The additional time was given to allow the participants to get in the best possible condition. The wrestling fans are promised a rare treat when the old rivals clash. Ryon has a first class record as a catch-as-catch-can mat performer. In and around Chicago he has made an enviable record. Munkers has held the championship title of the coast for five years. Judging from the form Ryon has been displaying in recent bouts, the champion will be compelled to extend himself to retain the crown when he faces Ryon next Wednesday evening.

Munkers stated yesterday that he desires to challenge any 158 pound wrestler on the Pacific coast for a contest in the near future, in Fresno. Fred Frisch of Fresno, a 135 pound boy, will meet Ed Moore, 130, as the preliminary to the main show. Both bouts will be catch-as-catch-can style, with strangle holds barred. The length of the rounds will be twenty minutes. Many Fresno fans will attend the match.

The Madera pavilion will seat 800 people. Ladies are to be admitted to the ringside. The match was originally scheduled to take place in Fresno, but was later changed to Madera. Munkers is managing his end, while Fred Lamond is looking after the interests of Ryon.

HERE'S NEW SPORT; COCK CROWING BOUT

There lives at Bristol, England, an ex-sailor who has hit upon a curious way of earning a living. He has a large stock of poultry of all kinds and some time ago he started cock-crowing matches, open to all comers from any part of the world. The idea caught on, and the crowing matches take place regularly once a week. The mode of operation is to place the cages containing the cocks in long rows, for it appears that one bird sets the others crowing. A marker, appointed by the organizer of the match, is told off for each bird, his duty being to note carefully the number of crows for which it is responsible, in the same fashion as the laps are recorded in a bicycle race.

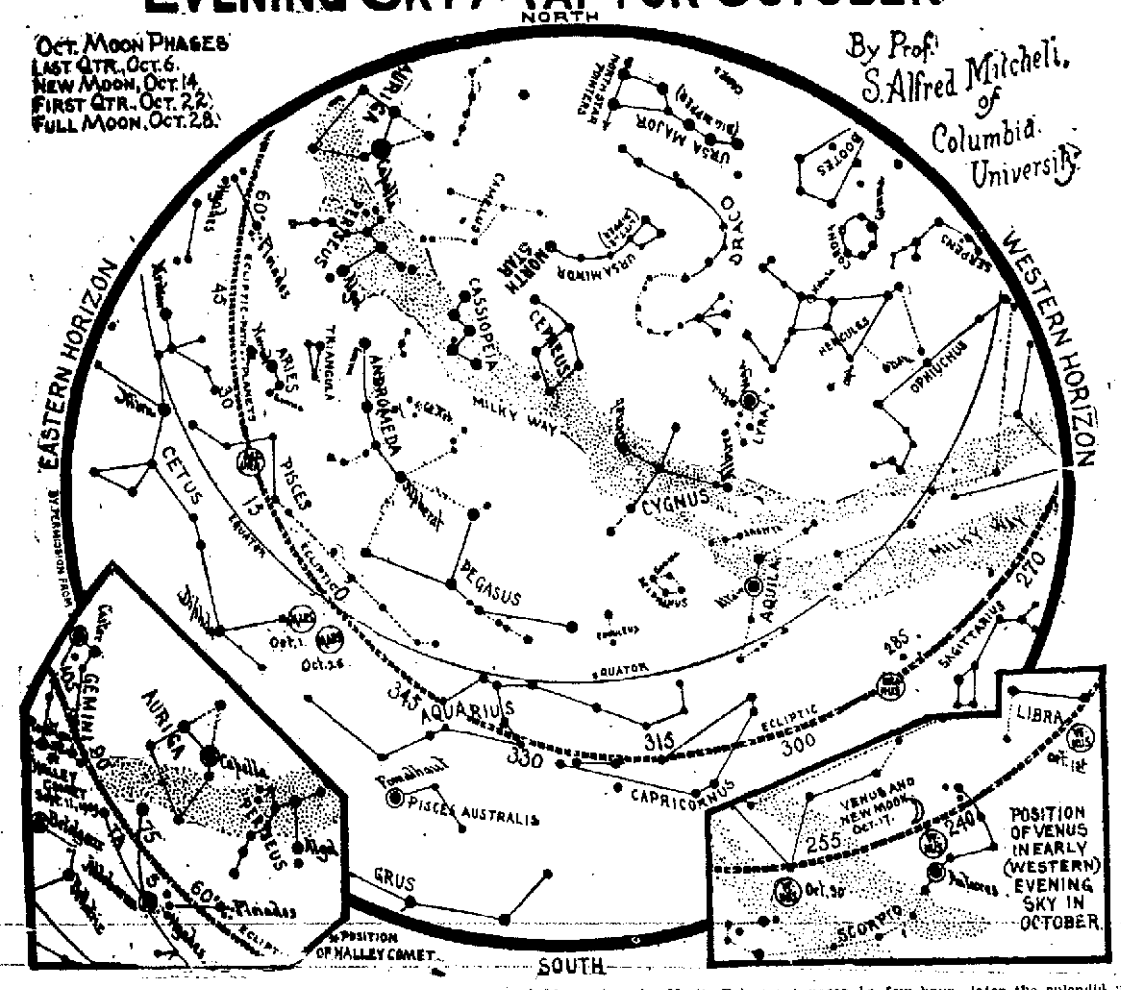

The customary duration of the match is one hour, the winner being the bird which scores the highest number of crows in the allotted time. The entrance fee for each bird is half a crown, and very often as many as 50 birds have taken part in one contest. As the value of the prize rarely exceeds two guineas the ex-sailor makes a very good profit.

A great number of these matches have taken place. The champion bird in a recent match scored 72 crows in one hour, a record which is still to be beaten.

EVENING SKY MAP FOR OCTOBER

The scientific world has been electrified to learn of Dr. Frederick A. Cook's claim that he has reached the point farthest north, and before this had ceased being a nine days' wonder or even the ink was dry on the announcing press, came news that Commander Robert E. Peary had "nailed the Stars and Stripes to the North Pole" and in consequence all eyes have been riveted on these daring attempts to acquire fame. The inborn love of discover, which attracted these men drew Christopher Columbus across the Atlantic, and also spurred on Henry Hudson in his several voyages to find the Northwest passage to India. In 1607 Hudson made an attempt to make his way between Greenland and Spitzbergen, reaching as far north as latitude 80 degrees, 23 minutes, and the following year he tried in vain to pass through between Spitzbergen and Nova Zembla. In 1609 still in search of the passage to India in his small boat the "Half Moon", he sailed up the Hudson River as far as Troy, the Three Hundredth Anniversary of which we are now celebrating. Though it is not longer necessary to find a passage to India, intrepid navigators have endured untold hardships in trying to reach the pole of the earth, and the names of Hansen, Greeley, the Duke of Abruzzi, Commander Peary and Lieut. Shackleton, stand out indelibly as fine examples of what determined effort may do in surmounting difficulties. Beyond the desire of conquering where others have failed, there seems to be no very great scientific value in these polar expeditions, except that of solving the astronomical problem of reaching a point ninety degrees from the equator.

In Peary's expedition of 1906, he found that there was an easterly drift of the polar ice, indicating the absence of any large bodies of land, and as a result of this information both Peary and Cook veered to the west of north in their quests for the pole. The observations of both explorers show that they each took a remarkably straight course to the pole, and each traveled very quickly. Cook's astronomical positions make clear that after having been two months on his trip subsisting on tallow, etc., he was able to make over the rough ice and snow nearly twenty miles per day for the thirteen days before discovering the pole, on April 21, 1908.

The method whereby one's position is determined on such an expedition, being a problem of practical astronomy, will undoubtedly be of interest to readers of the Star Map. One naturally supposes that night within the polar regions lasting as it does for six months must be one which gets blacker and blacker, with the "darkest hour just before the dawn"—a poetic fancy in which there is not a particle of truth. Two different effects make the polar nights less black. The first of these is that twilight lasts until the sun is 18 degrees below the horizon. Where Dr. Cook spent the winter in Annotak, there was some twilight even at the very depth of winter. Secondly, the mid-winter moon would be above the horizon continuously for two weeks, from first quarter through the full moon to third quarter, and those who have seen the full moon shining on the snow will know how brilliant that would make the polar night. In addition to these two, there would be the brilliant aurora borealis or northern lights. But temperatures of 83 degrees below zero Fahrenheit; Not very many of us would wish to experience a polar winter.

In the sledge trip to the pole, a distance about equalling that from Washington to Boston, no heavy instruments could be carried, and especially so in the final dash like that accomplished only by Cook and two Esquimos. The ordinary navigator's sextant would be too heavy and bulky, and would have to be replaced by a less cumbersome instrument. Peary ordinarily carried a small sextant, a so-called pocket sextant. The ship's chronometer in its square case would give way to a good pocket time-piece though two or three small chronometers might be carried. The sea captain observes the altitude of the sun by bringing it in contact with the horizon where sea and sky meet. But in the frozen north there is no such horizon, the ice fines are thrown up into hummocks and hills, and an altitude of the sun above the visible horizon would lead to inaccurate results. On land explorations, an artificial horizon is made by pouring mercury into a little shallow tray. But mercury freezes at 40 degrees below zero. A blackened glass plate made horizontal by means of spirit levels was used by Cook and well answered the purpose.

In polar dash, the latitude is the important information desired. Longitude i. e., the difference between local and Greenwich time is difficult to obtain and inaccurate. Consequently, latitude must be determined by methods which will not involve an accurate knowledge of the time. The sun's greatest altitude during the twenty-four hours would give the time of local noon and latitude from such an observation could be readily determined; and twelve hours later at midnight the sun's altitude would be least, and latitude could again be determined. When the greatest and least altitudes were the same, or in other words when the sun did not change in altitude at all (except for its change in declination in the sky), then was the latitude 90 degrees, and the north pole was reached. It is readily seen, the small instruments, the difficulty of determining the horizon, and the bitter cold combine together to make the observations of no great accuracy. Under such conditions it is questionable whether the position of the pole could be determined within ten miles!

After making so many carefully planned voyages to the north and after the many years of diligent work looking towards the climax of his life in the discovery of the pole, it does seem that the honor of being first to the top of the world should belong to Peary. It was Peary's accurate observations that paved the way for Cook's success, but it will be very difficult for Peary to prove that he himself was the first to reach the pole. In this conviction it may be said that a polar expedition would give the freest possible rein to an explorer willing to sacrifice his personal honesty to the desire of winning fame, and the applause of the world. Such a traveler could readily fix up his observations, adding a few miles and a few minutes of arc each day, and if skillfully done there would not be the slightest possible danger of detection. But we cannot imagine a scientist capable of so demeaning himself to gain a few short weeks or months of popularity, for an accident might happen, the deceit might be detected, and he would then go down to posterity as the greatest liar of the ages. Cook's veracity has been sadly impeached, but when his whole story can be told and his observations examined, he will be abundantly able to verify his claim that he was the first to reach the pole. In all scientific work it is generally the date of the announcement which counts for priority, and as Cook and Peary made their claims within five days of each other the honor of discovering the North Pole must necessarily be a divided one.

THE PLANETS.

Remarkably little is heard regarding our near neighbor in space Mars. This is undoubtedly due to the poor weather conditions that have been met with generally throughout Europe and in general throughout our own country. For some reason very little detail seems to be present on Mars. It is now past its nearest approach to the earth which occurred September 15. It increases its distance very slowly, and in September and October are usually the months of finest seeing at our observatories, we may expect important discoveries in the near future. Mars continues to retrograde till October 27, when it becomes stationary. A close approach of Mars and the moon occurs on September 30, and again on October 25. These will have an added interest coming so near the times of the Harvest and Hunter's full moons. Saturn is readily located from its position a little east of Mars. Venus is becoming nightly more conspicuous, slowly drawing farther away from the sun.

THE CONSTELLATIONS.

As usual the chart shows the sky as it appears at 9 P. M., on the first of the month, at 8 o'clock on the 15th and at 7 P. M. at the end. It shows probably the most barren starry region in the whole heavens. The four planets Venus, Uranus, Mars and Saturn, however, and fine clear autumn nights make the skies most interesting and the interest is increased as we watch a few hours later the splendid winter constellations rising high over the western horizon.

SEES HALLEY'S COMET.

First Sight Recorded by Professor Wolff, of Heidelberg.

Cambridge, Mass., Sept. 12.—Halley's comet, for which astronomers the world over have been eagerly watching, has been seen, after an absence of seventy-four years, according to a dispatch received today at the Harvard Observatory from Professor Wolff, of Heidelberg.

The sight was obtained on September 11 in right ascension, 6:18:12; declination, 17 degrees 11 minutes north. It could be made out only with a large telescope.

The position of the Comet at the date of its re-discovery by Prof. Wolff is shown in the small section map in the lower left hand corner above, as it does not come into view in the East until 11 p. m. on October 1st. Two hours later than the main map is arranged for on that date.

NOTICE TO TAXPAYERS

The first installment of taxes, both city and county, are due and payable at the office of the Tax Collector, at the Court House, Fresno, the second Monday in October (the 11th) and delinquent the last Monday in November (the 29th.)

Both installments may be paid at the same time.

Please remember that after six o'clock on Monday, November 29th, a penalty of 15 per cent will be added, and this law will be carried out to the minute. I would advise paying as early as possible to avoid the rush that occurs the last week.

Notice of Sale of Franchise of a Street and Interurban Railroad by the County of Fresno, State of California, over, Along, Across and Upon Certain Streets and Highways Therein.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

Notice is hereby given, that the Fresno Traction Company (a corporation), heretofore on the 4th day of October, 1909, made and presented its application in writing to the Board of Supervisors of the county of Fresno, State of California, for a certain franchise, running to itself, its successors and assigns, and granting for a period of fifty years the right to construct, equip, operate and maintain a street and interurban railroad over, across along and upon certain public streets and highways, and portions of streets, in said county hereinafter described, the cars to be run thereupon to be operated by electricity or other approved motive power; and

Whereas, the said Board of Supervisors did heretofore ascertain and determine that a franchise for fifty years should be granted to construct, equip, operate and maintain a street railroad over, across, along and upon the following described streets and highways within said county of Fresno, to-wit:

Beginning on First Street at or near the northerly line of Tulare Avenue and connecting with the tracks and street railroad now thereon and running thence in a southerly direction along the central portion of said First Street to the southerly line of Kern Avenue, all as per maps or plats showing said streets and avenues now on file and of record in the office of the county recorder of said county.

And whereas, it is proposed by said Board of Supervisors to offer for sale, and grant to the highest bidder said franchise on the terms and conditions hereinafter mentioned, the said franchise to be used for the transportation of passengers, express matter, the mails of the United States, and for freight.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that the said county of Fresno hereby offers to sell and grant a franchise for fifty years to construct, operate and maintain a street and interurban railroad over, across along and upon the above described public streets and highways, the cars to be run thereupon to be propelled by electricity or other approved motive power, to the person, company or corporation that will pay to the said county of Fresno, the highest cash price therefor and agree to pay and pay, to the said county two per cent (2 per cent) of the gross receipts arising from the use, operation or possession of said franchise and said street railroad thereunder, after the first five years, succeeding the date of such franchise, and semi-annually thereafter during the life thereof.

Notice is also hereby given, that sealed bids in writing therefor will be received up to eleven o'clock a. m. on the eleventh day of November, 1909, at the office of the clerk of the Board of Supervisors, and that on said day at the hour of eleven o'clock a. m. thereof, said Board of Supervisors will meet in regular meeting at the regular meeting place of said Board to open and read said bids and offer for sale and sell and award said franchise, and the bids received will be opened at that time; that all bids must be for the payment of a stated sum in gold coin of the United States; that the said franchise will be struck off, sold and awarded to the person, firm or corporation who shall make the highest cash bid therefor;

Provided only, that at the time of opening said bids, any responsible person, firm or corporation present or represented may bid for said franchise a sum not less than ten per cent above the highest sealed bid therefor, and that said bid so made may be raised not less than ten per cent by any other responsible bidder, and such bidding may go continue until finally said franchise shall be struck off, sold and awarded by said Board of Supervisors to the highest bidder therefor in gold coin of the United States.

Each sealed bid must be accompanied with cash or a certified check payable to the County Treasurer of said county for the full amount of said bid, and no sealed bid will be considered unless said cash or check is enclosed therewith and accompanies the same; the successful bidder must deposit at least ten per cent. of the amount of his bid with the clerk of the Board of Supervisors before said franchise will be struck off to him, and if he shall fail to make such deposit immediately his bid will not be received, and will be considered as void, and said franchise will then and there no again offered for sale to the bidder who shall make the highest cash bid therefor, subject to the conditions as to deposit as above mentioned. Said procedure will be had until said franchise is struck off, sold and awarded to a bidder who shall make the necessary deposit of at least ten per cent. of the amount of his bid, as herein provided. Said successful bidder shall deposit with the clerk of the Board of Supervisors within twenty-four hours after the acceptance of his bid, the remaining ninety per cent. of the amount thereof, and in case he or it fails so do so, then the said deposit therefore made will be forfeited, and the award of said franchise will be void and said franchise will then and there be said Board of Supervisors, be again offered for sale to the highest bidder therefor, in the same manner and under the same restrictions as hereinbefore provided, and in case said bidder fails to deposit with the clerk of said Board of Supervisors the remaining ninety per cent. of his bid within twenty-four hours after its acceptance, the award to him of said franchise will be set aside, and the deposit theretofore made by him will be forfeited, and no further proceedings for the sale of said franchise will be had until the same shall be readvertised for sale.

Notice is also hereby given that the successful bidder for said franchise must, within five days after said franchise is awarded to him, or it, file with the clerk of said Board of Supervisors a bond running to said county in the penal sum of $500 with at least two good and sufficient sureties, to be approved by said Board of Supervisors, conditioned that said bidder shall well and fully observe, fulfill and perform each and every term and condition of said franchise, and that in case of any breach of condition of said bond, the whole amount of the penal sum therein named shall be taken and deemed to be liquidated damages, and shall be recoverable from the principal and sureties upon said bond. If said bond be not so filed, the award of said franchise will be set aside and any money paid therefor will be forfeited.

By order of the Board of Supervisors.

In the Superior Court of the County of Fresno, State of California.

In the matter of the estate of Ben Lopizich, deceased.

Anton Lopizich, the administrator of the estate of Ben Lopizich, deceased, having this day presented to this Court, and filed herein his verified petition in due form of law, praying for an order of sale of all the real property of said deceased, for the purposes therein set forth to which reference is hereby made; and it appearing to this Court from such petition, that it is necessary to sell the whole of the said real estate to pay the debts outstanding against said deceased, and the debts, expenses and charges of administration.

It is, therefore, ordered by said Court that all persons interested in the estate of said deceased, appear before said Court on Monday, the 11th day of October, 1909, at 2 o'clock p. m. of said day, at the Court room of said Court, Department No. 2, in the County Court House, in Fresno City, Fresno County, California, to show cause why an order should not be granted to the said administrator for the sale of such real estate, at private sale; and that a copy of this order be published for four successive weeks in the Fresno Morning Republican, a newspaper printed and published in said Fresno County.

Dated this 5th day of September, 1909.
GEO. E. CHURCH,
Judge of Said Court.
W. A. Conn, Attorney for Administrator

Minister Crane May Lose His Job Before Getting Fairly Well Started In It

MUST EXPLAIN INDISCRETIONS

Reaches Washington and Has Conference With Secretary of State Knox—Article in Chicago Paper

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—Charles R. Crane's sudden, unexpected and hitherto mysterious recall to Washington by Secretary of State Knox, when he was at the point of sailing from San Francisco to assume his duties as minister of the United States to China, was occasioned by developments involving the question of Crane's fitness for that post. This much is known tonight in well-informed quarters in Washington. Unless Crane is able to clear himself in the eyes of Secretary Knox of an accusation of a serious breach of what the State department regards as the first principles of diplomatic discretion, the conference with his official chief may result in the abrupt termination of Crane's connection with the diplomatic service.

Minister Crane arrived in Washington late this afternoon from his hurried journey across the continent, reiterated his declaration of ignorance as to the occasion of his rather dramatic recall and declined to discuss the matter. He said he had reserved new accommodations for the trans-Pacific voyage on the sailing steamer from San Francisco on October 20th.

HIS INDISCRETION.

The State department has, in hand, it is said, what it regards as more or less convincing evidence that Minister Crane, on the eve of his departure for the Far East, became responsible for the publication in a Chicago paper of what the department views as a most indiscreet discussion of the attitude of the United States on two treaties recently negotiated between China and Japan. This the department holds to be the more serious because the attitude is still under confidential consideration, no decision having been reached. While the speeches delivered by Crane before the American Asiatic Association and at a dinner given in his honor at Chicago are viewed at the state department as having been at best unwise and undiplomatic, and, although deprecated, were not regarded as justifying any change in his plans.

The Chicago publication, however, in The Chicago publication falls, however, in the eyes of the department, into a category different and far more serious.

China and Japan early last month entered into treaties which contained provisions regarded by the State department as surprising and objectionable to this government. By this treaty, Japan could secure rights in Manchuria held by some diplomats to be in direct violation of both letter and spirit of the Portsmouth treaty. China has agreed, in the treaties now under consideration, that, before extending her present railway system in Manchuria she shall consult Japan, and, presumably, obtain her consent thereto. This provision is regarded as inharmonious with the declaration of Japan in the treaty of Portsmouth that she will not obstruct any measures taken by China for the development of her empire.

OPEN DOOR POLICY.

Another provision relating to the operation of coal mines on both sides of the Antung-Mukden and South Manchurian railway, it is thought may be objectionable to this government, as violating the policy of the "open door" as inaugurated by the United States and subscribed to by Japan and all leading powers of Europe. This "open door" policy is intended to assure "equal opportunities" to all nations to assist in the development of China without impairing her territorial integrity.

Matters of a highly confidential nature with respect to the position of the United States regarding these and other provisions of the treaties between China and Japan are alleged to have been divulged in the Chicago publication and for these disclosures the state department is disposed, in the absence of proof to the contrary, to hold Minister Crane responsible. According to authentic information obtained here today, Mr. Crane has been summoned to Washington from San Francisco to explain his reported statements.

Officials of the state department are extremely reticent on the whole subject, most of them affecting entire ignorance and referring all inquiries to Secretary Knox, who, up to a late hour tonight, was inaccessible. Meanwhile tomorrow's developments are awaited with an interest which may fairly be described as intense.

CRANE NOT INFORMED.

"I do not know why I was summoned to Washington by Secretary Knox," Minister Crane said upon his arrival here. "Just before sailing time I received a brief telgram from Secretary Knox asking me to return to Washington at once. That is all the message said.

"Secretary Knox has made an appointment for noon Monday at the state department, at which we will discuss the matter. I expect to be here for several days—until Thursday, at least. I have reserved accommodations on the steamer sailing from San Francisco on October 20th."

Minister Crane intimated that some of the alleged interviews with him telegraphed from the West were not entirely authentic. "A young man who interviewed me on the train on route to Chicago has a vivid imagination and put words into my mouth that I did not say," he said. "I treated him better than he treated me."

In this interview, Mr. Crane said, he was quoted as saying that the situation between Japan and China and the United States, "must be admitted to be delicate." He denied having made such a statement.

CONFERENCE HELD

Late tonight it became known that Crane had had a "preliminary conference" with Secretary Knox and Henry M. Hoyt, special counsel to the secretary. When Mr. Crane returned to his hotel he admitted that he had seen Mr. Knox and that in this "preliminary conference" matters at issue had been discussed. He was evidently deeply concerned about the situation, but refused to say a word about it.

Crane told his interviewers that when he arrived in Washington he had received a note from John W. Foster, formerly secretary of state and minister to China and now special adviser to the Chinese government and the American legation. He declined to divulge the nature of the conference which he said he had had with Foster.

U. P. E. C. BEGINS ANNUAL SESSION

Grand Reception Is To Be Held Tonight

County and City Officials To Be Special Guests of Honor

With an initiation of thirty candidates the supreme council of the U. P. E. C. started its twenty-third annual session in Fresno last night. It is estimated that last night there were over 1500 delegates of the order and visitors in the city, though the great majority will not be on hand until Wednesday, when the grand parade which will be a feature of the week will take place. This evening a reception for local people will be held which will be attended by the county and city officers.

The delegates that arrived in Fresno last evening in their special trains were welcomed to the city by hundreds of local Portuguese residents who had engaged the Park band for the occasion. The visitors were marched to Armory hall where all the exercises will be held, and after greetings all around an adjournment was taken for supper.

Owing to the fact that all of the arrivals were tired after their long trip many of them did not attend the initiation held last night, but all will be on hand tonight at the reception. The music for initiation and subsequent meeting at the hall last evening was furnished by the lodge band, numbering some thirty-five pieces. With the addition of the I. D. E. S. band for the open air concerts to be given the united band will number fifty pieces. Following is the program for the week:

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 12TH.
MONDAY, OCTOBER 11TH.

At 10 a. m.—The representative members from all the councils of the state with the united band of the U. P. E. C. and I. D. E. S. will escort the officers of the Supreme Council to the Hall of Sessions previous to the solemn opening of the twenty-third annual session of the S. C. of the U. P. E. C.

Afternoon session of the Supreme Council.

At 8:30 p. m.—Reception by the local authorities and Council Fraternity No. 23 to the officials of the Supreme Council, which shall be escorted to the hall by the executive committee, united band and the Uniformed Rank.

Persons not members of the society shall be admitted by invitation.

Session of the Supreme council morning and afternoon.

From 7:30 to 9:30 p. m. there will be a grand concert by the united band of the U. P. E. C. and I. D. E. S. at the court house park.

At 10 p. m. grand entertainment in the Empire theater for all the members of the Supreme council. Those who are not members will be admitted by card.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 13TH.

Morning call at the court house park by the united band.

At 8:30 a. m.—Session of the Supreme council, lasting until 10 o'clock.

At 10:30 a. m.—Formation of the different divisions, for the parade, in their respective locals previously designated by the grand marshal.

At 11 a. m.—Grand parade of the Supreme council in which the county and municipal authorities shall take parts also different societies, including the local council, Fraternity No. 23, U. P. E. C., etc., preceded by the united band and the uniformed rank, through the usual route adopted by former parades.

Several other bands of music shall take part in the parade.

Afternoon—The officers of the Supreme council will be taken in automobiles to the most interesting places around Fresno. Other members will be taken with their families to Recreation park.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 14TH.

Sessions of the Supreme council, morning and afternoon.

At 8:30 p. m.—Grand ball in the Armory hall to which all the members of the Supreme council and members of all subordinate councils shall be admitted by virtue of their badges.

Persons not members of the society will be admitted by invitation.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 15TH.

Morning—Continuation of the work of the Supreme council until its conclusion.

The united band of the U. P. E. C. and I. D. E. S. will be in Fresno in all its entirety from Sunday to Wednesday and about two-thirds of it will remain here until Friday afternoon.

GERMANS RESENT ENGLISH COMMENT

Consider British War Talk Groundless and Intended for Consumption in the United States

BERLIN, Oct. 10.—The speeches recently attributed to Lord Northcliffe, Admiral Lord Charles Beresford and Earl Grey, governor general of Canada, together with various magazine articles dealing with the relations of Great Britain and Germany have been widely reproduced and commented upon in this country.

The prevailing note is one of apprehension that a regular campaign has been organized for the purpose of depicting Germany of the good will of the United States and nourishing the idea that Germany is threatening Great Britain.

The German commentators point out that all the suggestions of coming trouble between Germany and Great Britain came from the British side and that no German of distinction, either in a public speech or in writing has given voice to suspicion of Great Britain.

Apprehension is expressed also over the growth of the war party in Great Britain. This party today is small, but it is influential and is gathering strength.

An official effort is being made to restrain German comment on these speeches and articles with the idea of avoiding the production of material for irritating discussions.

PICKPOCKETS MAKE GOOD SIZED HAUL

About $1,000 In Checks and Money Stolen

C. B. McKelvy Loses Draft For $700; Another Man Loses $180 in Checks

Pickpockets were very much in evidence yesterday during the visit of President Taft and several cases were reported by people who had had their pockets rifled of money.

N. H. Fugelsang, living in the Madison district on Rural route No. 3, reported to the police last night that three $5 gold pieces and $5 in silver with some other articles in a purse were taken from him yesterday.

J. H. Pratt of 741 Calllisch street reported that he had been robbed of three $20 gold pieces, one $10 gold piece and some silver.

Arthur Spiropules of 1340 F street reported that he had been robbed of two pay checks on the Southern Pacific. One was for $97.60 and the other for $82.00. He also lost two $5 gold pieces and $3 in silver.

C. B. McKelvy of 1036 J street, reported the theft of a purse containing a draft for $700 payable to Humphrey Bros. besides several checks and contracts.

J. H. Birdsall reported that he had been robbed but did not state what he lost.

NEW PASTOR FOR ST. PAUL'S CHURCH

Rev. Harold Govette to Succeed Rev. J. E. Moore

Latter, After Four Years' Labor in Fresno, Goes To Ukiah

Announcement was made at San Jose yesterday of the new list of appointments of pastors under the Pacific conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, of which the Fresno district forms a part. As had been expected, the Fresno church is given a new pastor, Rev. Harold Govette, who succeeds Rev. J. E. Moore, the incumbent. The change had been expected by the members of the Fresno church, but Rev. Govette's name had not been among those mentioned as likely to get the appointment, and little is known of him here as yet. Pastoral appointments are made in the Methodist church without any consultation with the members of the churches concerned.

Rev. Moore, who has been one of the most influential and popular clergymen to serve as minister of St. Paul's South Methodist church of this city, has been pastor of the Fresno church for four years past, but has been known here for several years longer, he having served as presiding elder of the Fresno district for some time previously. Mr. Moore was at one time pastor of the Ukiah church in northern California, to which he has now been reappointed, and where he still has some business interests that require his attention. Following his service at Ukiah, Mr. Moore was presiding elder of the San Francisco district, and then removed to Fresno. He had but a year more to serve in Fresno, under the rules of the church, and some time ago expressed a desire to return to Ukiah. The many friends of Rev. Moore and his family in Fresno will regret to see them remove from their home here.

Rev. J. J. N. Kenney, who has been presiding elder of the Fresno district for several years, succeeding Rev. Moore, has been reappointed to that position for another year.

CHICAGOANS TO SEE A HUNGARIAN PLAY

CHICAGO, Oct. 9.—Paul Berak, a Hungarian playwright, will see the dramatization of his play, "The Judge's Daughter," presented tomorrow evening by the Hungaria Literary and Singing club of Chicago. While in his native town in Hungary he had been turning out drama, poems and folk songs, but owing to social prejudice, no recognition of his talents was given him. Coming to the United States about five years ago he engaged in the butcher's trade, and although employed during the day he found time to devote many hours to his literary work. The play is written in the Magyar tongue, in three acts.

GAYNOR HITS BACK AT HEARST

Accuses the Independence League Man of Perfidy in Matter of the Mayoralty

NEWSPAPER MAN MAKES A REPLY

P. McCarren Steals Hearst's New Party Name "Civic Alliance" By Drumming Up a Dummy Petition

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—In a statement full of sting and bite, yet devoid of invective, William J. Gaynor, Democratic nominee for mayor of Greater New York, fired his first big projectile of the municipal campaign tonight in an attack on William R. Hearst.

Last week Hearst issued a statement saying positively that he would not run for mayor, but would support Justice Gaynor. Two days later he accepted the independent nomination for the office.

Justice Gaynor came out tonight with a statement and a letter purporting to show that Hearst had urged him to run for mayor only six months ago "on any ticket" and pledging his support. To strengthen his statement Justice Gaynor first made public a letter addressed to him by Rudolph Bluck who occupied an editorial position on the Hearst papers. Under the date of October 9, Bluck, while "regretting exceedingly to be drawn into the affair," reviews at some length what purports to have been the details of meetings between Hearst and Gaynor early last summer. The letter said in part:

"Shortly before Mr. Hearst left for Europe last summer, he asked me to bring you to his home. I think this was the second or third time you had ever seen him. He asked if you would not run for mayor in the fall, and said: 'I don't care what ticket you run on, I'll support you.'"

PAINFUL SHOCK.

Justice Gaynor reviews incidents which led up to Hearst't repudiation of him, which he describes "as the most painful shock I had ever experienced," and a breach of trust such as he never before had encountered.

"Meanwhile," continues the statement, "the primaries of the Independence League had been held and it was found that a decisive majority of the delegates chosen were in my favor. Thereupon Mr. Hearst would not permit the convention to be called to order. No other party boss ever went so far as that. It is said that this may be an indictable offense, and it is being looked into.

"After the primaries, Mr. Hearst began to cry fraud as usual, and that his ballot boxes had been stuffed. No one could vote at the league primaries except its enrolled members, as everyone knows. In fact, the enrollment was a mere skeleton, most of the districts having only a few on the roll, and only a handful of votes at the great majority of the polls. And yet the bald statement of Mr. Hearst that Charles F. Murphy or Tammany or some one stole his primaries or stuffed his ballot boxes seems to have been gulped down by every partisan newspaper in the city.

"Mr. Hearst now repudiates his league party; will not permit the convention to be called and is having himself nominated by petition against me. I am fully conscious that his great estate of from $50,000,000 to $65,000,000 gives him a huge advantage over me in one respect, but I am ready to meet him before the people of New York. I suppose we are about to witness again such a lavish use of money by a candidate for office as was never before witnessed in American politics, and which if continued must in the end debase and corrupt our politics and our system of government. But it may be that with all his money and newspapers and power, the people of New York may not let him run over me so easily as he thinks."

HEARST'S REPLY.

Hearst gave out a statement answering Gaynor in which he said:

"If Judge Gaynor has stated that I promised to support him under any and all circumstances and upon any and all tickets, he states what is positively untrue. I will try to assume that he is honestly mistaken, but it is difficult for me to do so, as the proposition is so unreasonable that it bears its refutation on its face.

"Judge Gaynor is not a life-long friend, or a deeply loved brother to whom a blind devotion might be due. He has been to me merely a representative of certain ideas, an exponent of certain principles. While he was supporting those principles I supported him. When he deserted those principles I parted from him."

Hearst denied that he invited Gaynor to come to his house. Gaynor, he said, came to him, "humbly, as I have no doubt he previously visited Murphy." He denies with a sarcastic reference to Bluck that he ever told Bluck that he would support Gaynor under any and all circumstances.

Hearst will appear before a mass meeting in Carnegie Hall tomorrow night to accept the nomination of his new party and to outline his platform.

KIDNAPS A PARTY.

The latest "issue" of the campaign is Tammany's kidnaping or attempted abduction, at least, of the title "Civic Alliance," and emblems thereof constituting the new party designation under which the Independents rallied to the support of Hearst.

As a result of this move, the Democratic ticket may appear under the emblems of three different parties on the official ballot—Murphy Democratic, old Independence League, recently captured at the primaries, and lastly, the new Civic Alliance.

For this latest plan to disconcert the Hearst followers, State Senator Patrick McCarren, the Democratic leader of Brooklyn, is responsible. While the promoters of Hearst's candidacy were getting signatures to put their ticket in the field under the name of "Civic Alliance" the Brooklyn senator according to reports, had his lieutenants at work on a similar document, except that Democratic candidates were substituted for a Hearst ticket.

Senator McCarren's men presented a petition by "independent voters" who had adopted the name of "Civic Alliance," but who named the Democratic candidates to the board of elections in New York just nineteen minutes before a Hearst lieutenant also appeared with a petition, name and emblem of the Civic Alliance.

Neither petition had more than fifty signatures, while the law requires two thousand names. In case that both the McCarrenites and the Hearst followers complete the list of names, it will be a case for the board of elections to decide.

Hearst's representatives will appear tomorrow before the board of elections to protest formally, and it is said they will carry the case to the courts if necessary.

"Anyway," said Charles E. Gehring, manager for Mr. Hearst, "it won't make much difference. Mr. Hearst can run under a straw hat if necessary."

CHILD DIES FROM AGONY OF BURNS

Little 4-Year-Old Girl Plays With Matches—Neighbor Burned in Trying Rescue

BAKERSFIELD, Oct. 10.—Four year old Lillian Helliker died at 7:30 o'clock this morning as the result of burns sustained yesterday while playing with matches.

Mrs. Helliker had stepped out to visit a neighbor and the child, who had been playing in an adjacent yard with other children, slipped away from her companions and returned home during her mother's absence. In the kitchen, she found some matches and went into the yard to play with them. Suddenly the child shrieked from pain and terror and neighbors saw her run a pillar of fire around the house to the front porch. A neighbor reached the little one first and wrapped her apron around the writhing form, smothering the flames and burning her hands in beating out the fire.

LOCAL GUARDSMEN OFF FOR VALLEJO

Annual Encampment Lasts For Twelve Days

Special Train Bears Members of Second Regiment To Camp

Eighty local guardsmen, members of Companies C and K, N. G. C., left on a special train at 6:30 o'clock yesterday morning for Vallejo, where the members of the Second Regiment will go into encampment for twelve days, the drilling to end on October 22.

The local guardsmen, under the supervision of Major George M. Boles, were housed in three special cars on a siding in the local Southern Pacific yards until the arrival of the train here at 5:30 from Bakersfield, which is the southern end of the Second Regiment.

An engine and two coaches, bearing Company I, of Bakersfield, left the old town at 1 o'clock yesterday morning, at Roshaven junction, two more coaches bearing Company M of Hanford, were picked up, with the baggage of the guardsmen.

Lieutenant Colonel Crites of Bakersfield was in charge of the delegation from the south. Lieutenant Buchanan will be retained as commissary under Major Boles. He held the same position under Major Spivey, Colonel Seymour of the Second Regiment will be in charge of the encampment at Vallejo.

During their sojourn at the camp the soldier boys will have an opportunity to visit the Portola festival in San Francisco.
